

BRITISH TROOPS HUNT KILLERS (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Anglo Soldiers Slain After Pub Stop

(Combined Wire Services)

BELFAST, Northern Ireland —Six gunmen police believe to be members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) "executed" three British soldiers Wednesday night after drinking beer with them in a Belfast pub. IRA spokesmen today denied their organization had anything to do with the killings.

The three soldiers, two of them teen-age brothers, were shot in the back of the head—the normal method used by the IRA to execute its enemies. The triple killing brought to six the number of British soldiers slain this year. The troops are being used to try to bring law and order to Northern Ireland's battling Protestant majority and Roman Catholic minority.

What happened was pieced together from a number of reports.

A Quiet Night

The soldiers—Fusilier John McCaig, 17, his brother Joseph, 18, both from Ayr, Scotland, and Fusilier Donald McCaughey, 23, from Glasgow—took advantage of a quiet night to go out for a drink. Wearing civilian clothes, they chose the quiet area of Ligoniel, a suburb about four miles from the city center.

They stopped at the Glen Inn Pub and had a pint of beer. The pub was crowded and they became involved in a conversation with six men. Shortly afterwards they left with the men, supposedly bound for the Squires Hill Tavern just down the road.

Six shots were fired, with each soldier getting at least one bullet in the back of the head. The bodies were piled atop one another in a ditch littered with beer bottles and the gunmen fled in a yellow car. Shortly afterwards, two schoolchildren saw the bodies and summoned a man who called police.

'Cold-Blooded Murder'

An army spokesman said "it is callous and cold-blooded murder. They just gunned the three troopers down and left them here in a heap, one atop the other." Another officer, clenching his fist in anger, said, "They were deliberately murdered. It was an ambush. The men were lured to their deaths and then shot. Obviously they never had a chance."

Both army and police sources said they were convinced the killings were carried out by the IRA.

However, spokesmen for the two feuding branches of the IRA denied they had anything to do with the killings. A spokesman for the "regular" branch said 'we had nothing to do with it" and a spokesman for the "provisional" group said "we have checked with all our units in Belfast and wish to state that none of them carried out any actions last night."

Nothing like it had happened to British troops since Jewish guerrillas in Palestine kidnaped and hanged two British sergeants in 1947.

"I am shocked and horrified by the cold-blooded killing of these three young men," Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark told newsmen. The British Cabinet held an emergency meeting in London.

Hard-line Protestants in Chichester-Clark's Ulster Unionist party were expected to renew demands that the army and police take tougher action against known leaders of the IRA.

Informed sources in London believed still more troops would be sent to Northern Ireland, boosting its present garrison of 8,500.

In Dublin, the killings were condemned by the Irish Press, newspaper of Prime Minister Jack Lynch's Fianna Fail party.

Heavy Fighting in Southern Laos

SAIGON (AP) — New fighting erupted in the Sepone area in southern Laos today as U.S. B52 bombers kept up their heavy pounding of the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Helicopter pilots shuttling into Laos reported heavy rocket and mortar attacks by the North Vietnamese. One helicopter landing zone was said to have been hit by more than 100 rocket and mortar rounds.

Pilots also reported heavy ground contact but could give no details.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman at Quang Tri, Maj. Doan Doc Hoi, said 23 North Vietnamese were killed in two clashes today 11 miles south of Sepone. He said two South Vietnamese were wounded and two were missing.

Fog and low clouds for the third day cut heavily into U.S. helicopter support for the South Vietnamese ground troops sweeping across the North Vietnamese supply network in the Laotian panhandle. But the weather had no effect on the eight-engine B52s flying at altitudes up to 30,000 feet.

Allied sources reported more than 500 North Vietnamese killed by three B52 raids Wednesday in the jungles seven and 25 miles southeast of Sepone, the reported deepest point South Vietnamese have reached in Laos.

U.S. sources said South Vietnamese ground troops sweeping seven miles southeast of Sepone made contact with a large force of North Vietnamese and called for help. With gunship helicopters grounded by the weather, two flights of B52s were sent.

A South Vietnamese communique said ground troops sweeping the area a few hours later found 465 enemy bodies, the largest claim so far of the Laotian offensive and possibly of the Indochina war.

In a third raid Wednesday, U.S. sources said, a flight of B52s hit a tunnel complex 25 miles southeast of Sepone, and afterward the bodies of 48 North Vietnamese were found.

The U.S. Command in its weekly casualty summary announced that 44 Americans were killed in combat last week, a drop of 25 from the six-month high of 69 the week before.

The Command said 434 U.S. troops were wounded last week, an increase of 153, and 23 died of nonhostile causes

The report raised total U.S. casualties reported in the war to 44,631 killed in combat, 9,313 dead of nonhostile causes and 295,878 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters also reported a decrease in casualties last week, with 650 of its troops killed and 1,671 wounded, compared with 898 killed and 2,222 wounded the previous week.

The two allied commands reported 4,767 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed last week, 422 less than the week before.

Military sources reported today that U.S. fighter-bombers last week destroyed the only North Vietnamese antiaircraft missile site discovered in Laos.

The sources said an analyst in Hawaii studying reconnaissance photographs detected the SAM site some three miles inside Laos near the Ban Karai Pass, one of the three major entrances from North Vietnam to the Ho Chi Minh trail and 35 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

Last Saturday and Sunday, Air Force and Navy fighter-bombers attacked the camouflaged installation and "totally destroyed" it, the sources said. There was no report of any missiles launched from the site.

Meanwhile, in Paris Hanoi's chief negotiator boycotted the weekly session of the Vietnam peace talks today for the second week in succession, protesting what his deputy called threats by President Nixon against North Vietnam.

Deputy Representative Nguyen Minh Vy told newsmen the boycott by his chief, Xuan Thuy, was a protest "against President Nixon, the person ultimately responsible for all American policy, personally making statements in the sense of carrying the war to the Democratic Republic of Vietnam."

The Viet Cong's chief delegate, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, also was absent for the second week in succession. Last week she stayed away to join Thuy's protest, but today she was en route to Romania for a "friendship visit" announced Wednesday.

American officials said last week that they regarded the boycott as a "clear signal" that the other side was not interested in and not prepared for any negotiations at this time.

READING MATTER—Capt. Ernest L. Medina is shown here holding a book by Robin Moore entitled "Court Martial". Asked if he had read it, Medina said no, but that he intended to soon. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

'Oh My God, What's Happened'

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Capt. Ernest Medina says his first panicky thought on realizing the bloody carnage his troops had visited on My Lai was: "Oh, my God. What's happened?"

And then he told Lt. William L. Calley's murder-trial jury in a voice that sometimes quavered, "I realized exactly the disgrace that was being brought upon the Army uniform that I am proud to wear. I realized the repercussions that it would have against the United States of America."

Nothing in the four months of Calley's court-martial matched the dramatic confrontation Wednesday of two former comrades-in-arms — the company commander and his platoon leader—each accused of wanton mass murder. In sworn testimony, some of their statements on key points were sharply contradictory.

Three times, Medina said, he warned his troops not to kill innocent civilians and when he happened upon a pile of 20 to 28 bodies at a village trail crossing the career soldier said, "I wanted to believe with all my heart that it happened by artillery or gunship fire."

Calley had testified that Medina had given orders to wipe out civilians.

Today's witness was to be S/Sgt. David Mitchell, who protested at his own court-martial that "I never shot at anyone," and was acquitted of charges that he assaulted 30 civilians with intent to kill.

Calley is charged with premeditated murder of 102 My Lai inhabitants. Medina is to be court-martialed on a similar charge. Each could be sentenced to death.

The dark-haired 34-year-old Medina, of Montrose, Colo., joined the National Guard in 1952 at the age of 15, served as an enlisted man in the Army from 1956 until he graduated from Ft. Benning's Officer Candidate School in 1964.

Like the rest of his Charlie Company, Medina was inexperienced in combat.

Before the My Lai assault, Medina said of his troops:

"I thought the people of Charlie Company were good soldiers."

Long after the shooting had stopped in the village, late in the afternoon of March 16, 1968, Medina said he was asked by a superior for the number of noncombatants dead.

"I got my platoon leaders together and I asked them for a body count of innocent civilians that had been killed," he said never taking his eyes from the jurors.

Calley, who was 1st Platoon leader, "told me in excess of 50," Medina said.

A similar figure came from the 2nd Platoon leader, Medina said, and the lieutenant in charge of the 3rd Platoon reported six.

"At that time," he recalled, "I thought, 'Oh, my God. What happened'? I already had an indication that noncombatants had been killed, I did not know that it was this large a magnitude.

"At that time I made a remark to the platoon leaders that I had seen approximately 20 to 28 and that was the body count that I was going to give."

At the end of the operation, Medina said, he reported Charlie Company had killed 80 to 85. Another company had 45. A total of 128 appeared in official battle reports.

Medina said that at one time when he ordered a cease-fire he called forward to Calley's platoon and said, "Damn it, what is going on up there? I want all this firing stopped."

He indicated that for the first three hours of the operation he thought his troops were battling the 48th Viet Cong Battalion.

On point after major point, Calley's old company commander flatly contradicted the lieutenant, whose chief defense is that he was obeying Medina's orders to wipe out civilians who got in the way.

"Did you at any time order or direct Lt. Calley to kill or waste any Vietnamese people," asked Judge Reid Kennedy.

"No, sir," said the captain.

The questioning moved to a briefing Medina gave his men on the eve of the attack.

"Did you notify the members that were listening to destroy everything in the village?"

"The question was can we kill women and children," said Medina. "I said, 'No, you have to use common sense. If they have a weapon and they are trying to engage or harm you, you can engage them.' "

Medina said the Task Force Barker units had been given faulty intelligence information.

"The information that I received," he said, "was that the only inhabitants of the village of My Lai would be the 48th VC Battalion; that there would be no women and children, that they would be gone to market. I did not expect any noncombatants in the village of My Lai 4."

Center of Controversy

The half-century old Stone Ridge Grange Hall purchased by the Town of Marbletown last June for $3,500 came crashing down Wednesday. The $500 demolition contract was awarded to Hurley Sand and Gravel Co. Reverberations of the razing were heard at Wednesday Night's Town Board meeting where several persons who had a use for the structure filed objections to the demolition. Rondout Rec Center: Bids Out Immediately

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON — It's taken three long years, but the Rondout Neghborhood Center has finally become a reality.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig announced today that bids for the $260,000 Downtown structure will be advertised immediately. Pending smooth sailing, the building should be completed and ready for occupancy late this year.

Phase one of the project will include construction of a one-story structure at the corner of Broadway and Spring Street. Facilities will include a teen center, a day care center, nurses' and doctors' offices, a recreation office, a meeting room, laundry room and three separate kitchen facilities.

The structure was originally supposed to include a full-size gymnasium and locker rooms, with a total cost estimated at $365,000. In 1968, however, the Kingston Housing Authority withdrew the $75,000 it had earmarked for the center and the city was forced to pay a $25,000 architect's fee for preliminary plans and drawings, leaving $265,000 in funds for the project.

Consequently, plans for the construction of the gymnasium were withdrawn from the first phase of the project.

Eventual addition of the gymnasium to the structure is expected, however, although additional federal monies will have to be solicited. The roof of the newly planned building has been "specially designed," said Koenig, so that the gymnasium can be erected as a second story to the facility.

A federal grant of $193,512 has been set aside for the center by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The city will provide the rest of the funding for the project. Koenig stated that there were no state funding for the project.

The bids for the project will be opened March 29 at 2 p.m. in the City Clerk's office at City Hall. HUD must then approve the bids before construction can begin.

Koenig said he hoped for groundbreaking ceremonies "in the early part of April." Construction will run throughout the summer with tenative completion of the building in November.

The Mayor, who has scheduled numerous meetings with downtown residents and federal authorities in an attempt to get the project underway, said today that he is "very pleased" that the building is approaching reality.

The 6,400 square foot structure will be located across the street from the new City Hall. There are no parking facilities planned for the center, although the City Hall parking lot will be available for night gatherings. Koenig also announced that the city is negotiating for an adjacent parcel of land that may eventually be used as an outdoor recreation area.

Augustus R. Schrowang and Associates are architects for the project. Plans and specifications for the building can be obtained at the architect's 41 Pearl Street offices or at the City Clerk's office.

In a related development, Koenig announced that the Board of Public Works last night approved his suggestion that future developers need only submit their plans to the City Engineer's office, rather than to all of the different city agencies (water, fire, plumbing etc., for example) separately. Plans will be forwarded for approval to the different departments by the City Engineer, rather than requiring the developer to solicit approval himself from the necessary departments.

Thruway Accident Kills Seminarian

PLATTEKILL — A 23-year-old seminarian from Vermont was instantly killed when ejected from his overturning car and run over by a tractor-trailer Wednesday afternoon following a spectacular collision on the State Thruway near the Plattekill rest area.

Two other young seminary students and the operator of the truck were injured in the crash that occurred shortly after 4 p. m.

Newburgh State Police continued investigation of the accident today.

Police identified the dead man as Ralph Peters of Rutland, Vt. Peters was the owner of the passenger car involved in the fatality, but at the time of the mishap the vehicle was being driven by Charles Dillingham, 23, of Indianapolis, Ind., police reported. Peters was riding on the passenger side of the front seat.

Thruway investigators said the tractor-trailer was operated by R. Sheldon Lindley of Canton, Pa. and owned by Associated Transport Inc.

According to police, Dillingham and the other two seminarians were southbound on their way to St. Mary's Seminary and University in Baltimore, Md., when the driver pulled out and attempted to pass the southbound tractor-trailer.

Dillingham, authorities noted, apparently over-steered as he turned to reenter the right traffic lane and the car overturned.

The tractor-trailer reportedly crashed into the uncontrolled passenger car as Peters was ejected. The tractor ran over the victim, crushing his body.

Dillingham, the truck driver and Bernard P. Shulack, 22, of Butler, Pa., a passenger in Peters' car were taken to St. Luke's Hospital for treatment.

Rhinebeck Restoration Plans Being Discussed

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

There is a plan afoot to restore downtown Rhinebeck to resemble its predominantly Civil War architecture, according to Town Historian DeWitt Gurnell.

Judge Gurnell mentioned during his historian's report to the Town Board Wednesday night that he had recently "attended a meeting with the Mayor and Supervisor and other prominent people of the town to discuss the restoring of the village to the Civil War period."

A special committee has been started to study the idea. The downtown buildings are largely of the same period, as a great fire levelled the north side of East Market Street in the 1860s.

In conjunction with this, Rhinebeck is planning a bicentennial celebration of the Revolutionary War, with Charles LaForge, proprietor of the Beekman Arms Hotel, committee chairman.

There is a five-year plan to ready the village for the festivities. The Village of Fishkill in Dutchess County is also planning a celbration. Judge Gurnell added that the plans will include drafting "our longhaired young men and women" to wear tricorner hats, buckskin clothes and granny dresses and perhaps running a farm in the style of the 18th century.

The Town Board handled dozens of items in a session which stretched almost to midnignt.

Seven members of the Zoning Board of Appeals were officially named and their staggered terms of office assigned. They are: Chairman Arthur Burns, five years; Rocco Lagno and Ed Murphy, four years; Charles Bach, three years; Mrs. Donald Stickle and Donald Rubsha, two years; and Daniel McLaughlin, one year.

Rhinebeck attorney Carl Ulrich was designated town attorney, replacing resigning Silas Frazer, who served in that capacity for ten years.

Robert Shackleton was officially named Chairman of the Planning Board, fulfilling the unexpired term of Homer Staley who served 11 years. The term expires March 8, 1972.

Resident Donald Burns of the Dog Ordinance Committee presented the Board with copies of the proposed new ordinance for study. Town Clerk Esther Miller noted that there are about 300 unlicensed dogs in the town, and residents should hasten to make amends for their lax compliance.

The Town Board proposed retention of the three-man elected Board of Assessors, and set 8 p.m., March 31 as a date for a public hearing on that subject.

The next regular Town Board meeting will be held April 14 at the Rhinecliff firehouse, with a 7:30 p.m. public hearing preceding regular business. The subject will be a proposed Halloween curfew ordinance.

A meeting will be set up at the Town Hall sometime in April for presentation to residents of Northern Dutchess on the countywide taxmapping and reappraisal, as proposed by County Representative Madison Sipperley Jr.

Supervisor William Allen was asked by residents Paul Gmeiner and James Hawco to issue more specific accounting of irregularites in the books, especially related highway funds.

Allen replied that he felt it was more important to stress future budget needs to the public, and that figures are available at the the Town Hall for any interested residents. Stricter control over Highway Funds have been instituted, and Judge Herman Tietjen remarked that there is "no more slush fund."

And Allen cleared up some misunderstanding on a sign on the town sand pile which reads "No Sand — By Order of the Town Board." Evidently what started as residents taking a pailful for their sidewalks mushroomed into pickup trucks and dump trucks filling up with sand for businesses and institutions.

"People are being told to take it anyway — it's Bill Allen's sandpile," said the supervisor. "I don't know what kind of games our Superintendent of Highways is playing."

The Town of Rhinebeck's equalization rate has been cut from 97 to 93 by the state, but it is still the smallest decrease of any town in the county, according to assessor Lester Butler.

The Rhinebeck chapter of Dutchess County Senior Citizens will move its quarters from the Town Hall to the Dutch Reformed Church because more room is needed and there are fewer stairs to contend with.

A letter from Rhinebeck Country School proprietor Leonard Zneimer to County Executive David C. Schoentag was read, urging the county to list separately town, county, and state real estate taxes for the edification of the taxpayer.

Schoentag's reply indicated that this is currently being reviewed, and County Representative Matt Sipperley has said that this will probably be done in the future.

Lockup...Retention or Conversion

RHINEBECK

Whether or not to keep the Town of Rhinebeck's tiny two-cell jail was the point of lively but amiable contention at Wednesday night's Town Board meeting.

Judge DeWitt Gurnell's report concluded that the lockup should be retained for future use, while Judge Herman Tietpen's report indicated that the space could be better utilized for offices.

Part of the irony of the situation centered on the fact that both men quoted opposite opinions from the same sources in their respective reports, coming to opposite conclusions.

The original intention of the study, ordered by Supervisor William Allen, was to determine whether the large unused jail space might be converted into zoning-related offices, and to get legal and police opinions on the feasibility.

Judge Gurnell's report cited opinions from both village patrolmen, village police justice William Pollard, Sheriff Lawrence Quinlan, and State Police Sgt. Clarke asserting that the lockup should be kept for emergencies, for short-term youthful offender detention, and for convenience.

Judge Tietjen said these same men pointed out the proximity of the county jail at Poughkeepsie, the lack of any budget provisions for the jail, and the lack of anyone to look after a prisoner.

"I doub' that jail has been used five times in the past ten or fifteen years," said Supervisor Allen.

In rebuttal, Gurnell claimed that the 10' by 10' room was hardly enough for offices, that he used it as an object lesson in his "crime prevention" program, and that he didn't want to see "kids subjected to hardened criminals" as in the county jail for temporary detention.

And Tietjen responded, "If we had to put someone in there tonight, there would be no one to watch him."

Allen facetiously suggested moving the jail to the new village hall structure across the street, if they would take it, or selling it to the Historical Society for $1 for display at the fairgrounds.

No decision was reached.

Town of Esopus Inches Closer to Zoning Law

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

PORT EWEN — The Town of Esopus moved a step closer to zoning with the announcement that a public informational meeting will be held Wednesday, March 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall.

Chester DuMond Jr., Planning Board chairman said at Wednesday night's Town Board meeting that printed copies of the proposed zoning law are ready for the public meeting. He also suggested that the Town Board prepare the mechanics of setting up a public hearing in the near future. DuMond also announced that the Zoning Commission will meet on March 18 to go over final details of the proposed new law.

Supervisor George H. Freer read a communication from the County Legislature which confirmed the appointment of Irving Maurer as the town's representative on the County Planning Board. His term runs to Dec. 31, 1975. He succeeds Robert Courtney, who previously served in that capacity.

In regard to the state's new assessment improvement law, the Town Board voted to accept the state plan for the appointment of one assessor on or before Oct. 1, and will not call for a special referendum for the purpose of retaining the existing three-man elected assessor board.

Jack G. Reynolds, director of the County Assessment Office explained the new state law and the deadline dates. He noted that the town can appoint one assessor on or before Oct. 1, who must meet certain qualifications and must also attend a state assessors course in Albany before he may serve. He said the incumbent assessors terms will automatically expire Sept. 30 under the new law which also provides for an appointed board of review to hear grievances.

Reynolds said that under the new system the county assesses complex parcels in the township and the state will appraise utility and service company properties.

Reynolds, who is a former Town of Esopus assessor, said the town has the option to retain its existing board of assessors, but this option must be approved by a town referendum by April 1, this year.

In regard to a request for street numbering, Reynolds said that the county is expected to approve a contract for photographing the entire county from the air and the drafting of a tax map. The resulting grid map will provide the tools for house numbering with no cost to the town, he noted.

Thomas Johnson, secretary of the Planning Board noted that the Esopus Meadows Lighthouse is 100 years old this year and it would be fitting if the town made some overtures toward a restorration project to save the historic structure. If restored the building could serve many purposes as a landmark site for visitors, possibly a museum. Johnson noted that the Town Board should contact the U. S. Coast Guard and go through the motions to gain acquisition to the structure before the Coast Guard has it demolished. The lighthouse has not been used for some time. An automatic light now serves the purpose for safe navigation. Johnson said that private funds are needed for the restoration project. Supervisor Freer said he would make some contacts to determine how the landmark can be saved.

Councilman Richard Sickler reported he had complaints about the hazardous condition for children at the landfill site at Ulster Park. He said it had been suggested that the landfill be fenced in to keep the children away. Supervisor Freer said there was no money in the budget for the project this year. However, it was decided to have the Town Board make an on-site inspection and get estimates from contractors to determine the cost of such a project.

Supervisor Freer set March 17 for a Town Board tour of various problem areas with the superintendent of highways, including drainage conditions on Clay Road and Lindorf Drive and road conditions.

A special Town Board meeting will be held with the building inspector to review the building code. Freer observed that increased construction activity is expected in the spring and the town was seeking an assistant for the building inspector, DuVall H. Dunbar.

Mrs. Bell to Be Feted For Long County Service

KINGSTON — Ulster County Legislature meeting today at 4 p. m. will honor Mrs. Eleanor Bell, senior account clerk in the Treasurer's Office upon the occasion of her retirement, March 31, after more than 34 years service.

Anne Brown, of Saugerties, a clerk in the Treasurer's Department for more than 20 years will also be recognized.

Mrs. Bell, wife of former Ulster County Sheriff Claude Bell, also is the daughter of former Assemblyman Milton Edward Young who served the State Legislature in 1909 and 1910.

Other business on the agenda for the 4 p. m. session, in the County Office Building, will include an address by a representative of the Federated Sportsmens' Club and another by residents of Barclay Heights in Saugerties.

At the evening session which begins at 8, the Legislature will consider at least 13 resolutions including authorization for the issuance of $322,000 in serial bonds for reconstruction of Neighborhood Road and Boices Lane. Another resolution calls for the appointment of a bipartisan committee, composed of equal representation from the county's two major political parties, to prepare a redistricting plan of the Ulster County Legislature to conform with the results of the 1970 census.

Paltz Candidates— Similarity of Views

NEW PALTZ — The four incumbents and the lone challenger sat down to discuss their stands on the issues at Wednesday's Candidates Night sponsored by New Paltz League of Women Voters in New Paltz Savings Bank, Community Room, and found that the similarity of their views outweighed their differences.

The only opposition in the village elections next Tuesday, March 16, is being furnished by Charles (Carlos) Fernandez, who is opposing long-time incumbent Mayor Henry DuBois. Trustees George Ackert, O. Lincoln Igou and John Sherwig are all running unopposed.

DuBois, who is running on his 32-year record as mayor and trustee of the Village, cited the new sewage treatment plant, the anticipated burial of utilities on Huguenot Street, the village's system of storm and sanitary sewers, and village's conferral with the town on the formation of a joint police as pluses for his recent administration. He pledged to continue to push the state for a by-pass around the village from the Thruway to the west side of the Wallkill, a road he said the state has promised. He also came out strongly for a program of village beautification, including renovation of Main Street stores, beautification of the banks of the Wallkill, and improvement of the village zoning codes.

Fernadez, who in addition to furnishing the only opposition in the current elections is furnishing the only opposition DuBois has ever had in a race for mayor, said he would like to bring "a fresh face and a fresh set of ideas" to village government. He said he considered the substance of Dubois's recently released campaign statement a victory, as the mayor was now committed to many of the issues Fernandez favored. He said he hoped New Paltz had seen its last uncontested election. Saying the goal of the village board should be to arouse the "concern of the community," Fernandez came out in favor of a two-arterial system to relieve Main Street of all traffic, the creation of a shopping mall, and widespread beautification including parks. He also called for recycling of sewage and refuse.

Ackert considered Main Street a problem, as did all candidates, and pointed out that the Fulton Street Extension and the proposed road between South Putt Corners and Route 32 may serve to relieve some of the congestion. Ackert is chairman of the street and firemen's committees of the board, and he pointed out he had held every office in the Fire Department including chief.

Igou, saying he was running for trustee to "pay back to New Paltz a small part of what it has given me," laid most village problems to growth and expansion. He said he had the ability to see both sides of a question, and recognize the differences between ideals and practical solutions.

Sherwig came out strongly for revision and enforcement of the village zoning laws, and the adoption of a master plan for both town and village. Sherwig wanted a provision in the zoning laws allowing the rejection of proposed construction because it was "esthetically repugnant." He also said he was "puzzled by the puny tax base of the village," and would investigate ways of expanding it.

All candidates were opposed to a decrease in the population density requirement to allow more apartment construction, uncommitted on the question of dissolution pending further study, and opposed to radical expansion of the college, as has been proposed. Sherwig, a history professor at the college, went so far as to say, "Anything we can do through planning and zoning to discourage the college from expanding to 10,000 is a step in the right direction."

The meeting, conflicting as it did with the Town Board meeting and a lecture on the college campus by Margaret Mead, was sparsely attended.

Union Warns Con-Ed of Friday Action

NEW YORK (AP) — The chief negotiator for one of two unions bargaining with the Consolidated Edison Co. says it will break off talks and begin strike preparations if an acceptable offer is not made by Friday evening.

The two unions, which represent 18,900 Con Edison workers, rejected a new offer from the company Wednesday after earlier agreeing to extend their strike deadline to 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Vincent D. McDonnell, chairman of the State Mediation Board, said he would continue his efforts on a round-the-clock basis with Local 1-2 of the Utility Workers of America and Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

McDonnell reported that James Joy Jr., assistant business manager and chief negotiator for Local 1-2 with 18,000 members, had told the company his union would quit the talks unless it had an acceptable offer by Friday evening.

Later McDonnell reported that "considerable progress" had been made in the talks.

Con Ed has 4,000 supervisory personnel to operate the giant utility in the event of a strike, but their effectiveness may be hampered by recent equipment problems and power shortages in the system.

Con Ed supplies 8.9 million customers in New York City and Westchester with electricity, gas and steam.

Marbletown – A Gap Is Showing

By ALBERT CAWEIN

STONE RIDGE

A serious communication gap between Marbletown Town Board and its Recreation Commission became apparent at Wednesday night's Town Board meeting when a controversy regarding the demolition of the old Stone Ridge Grange Hall monopolized most of the session.

Demolition of the 54 year old wooden frame structure yesterday came as a surprise to the commission, who according to Paul Sturges, a member of the commission, was being considered by that group for use as a recreation center.

Supervisor Kenneth D. Smith said there was no secret about the demolition. He said the town bought the building in June for $3,500 to provide greater access to the Town Highway Department building in the rear. He said uses for the building were discussed at previous Town Board sessions and there were suggestions that it be remodeled for use as a town garage. However, estimates indicated it would cost from $9,000 to $10,000 and the idea was abandoned after a public hearing on the matter Dec. 16. About 34 persons attended and a show of hands indicated that the remodeling should be abandoned due to the excessive cost, the supervisor said. Hurley Sand and Gravel Co., indicated it had the men and equipment now to do the job and offered to take the contract for $500. The weather yesterday was favorable and the job was accomplished.

The Rec Commission headed by William Supfle, when informed about the demolition, called a hurried meeting Wednesday prior to the Town Board meeting and prepared a resolution which was presented to the Town Board. The resolution, according to Sturges, said the commission was studying the possible use of the structure for rec purposes and they believed there "function has been impugned" and they asked that "further recommendations be considered and heard."

Sturges said the commission had advised the Town Board at the December board meeting that they wanted a recreation facility embodied in the plans for the town garage proposed at that time.

The Recreation Commission claims it had not been advised of the demolition.

In other business an Environmental Conservation Commission was named including Mrs. Margaret Dunbar of Lomontville; Mrs. Mary Pierce, Stone Ridge; Mrs. Jane Hansen, High Falls; Fred Hough, Kripplebush; Daniel Smiley, Mohonk; Robert Korwan, The Vly and two teenagers, Miss Ruth Poenicke and Miss Jill Rider, both of Stone Ridge.

The next Town Board meeting has been scheduled for the first Wednesday, April 7, instead of the usual date.

Unemployment Change Backed by Chamber Board

KINGSTON

The Board of Directors of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce has "unanimously decided to take a firm stand in favor" of a bill currently before the New York State Legislature that would repeal the existing law that provides unemployment insurance to persons on strike.

In a letter forwarded to Governor Nelson Rockefeller, that board states that the law "did not meet its original intent; i.e., an attempt to equalize the bargaining strength between labor and management."

The board further claims that the "law is unnecessary and out of order" and that "It should be repealed, if for no other reason, to keep our laws timely."

Rockefeller was urged to support the repeal measure.

The letter, which was forwarded to State Senator Jay P. Rolison and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, also stated, "It is mainly through business recovery and profits that the necessary revenues can be raised to help New York State meet its just programs. The assessment of revenues to finance a morally bad law such as this is certainly not in keeping with the best interests of state government."

The unanimous decision to support the repeal measure was made at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber.

The letter was signed by John D. Shannon, chairman of the governmental affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber president, Clifford A. Henze.

Gardiner OKs Seniors' Hike

GARDINER

The Gardiner Town Board has voted to raise the income limit for senior citizens exemption on property tax from $3,000 to $4,000. The maximum allowed under state law is $5,000. The action was taken at this week's Town Board meeting.

The Board voted to appoint Manuel S. Emanuel Associates, Nyack, as town planning consultant.

A public hearing will be held March 30 on the appointment of a single assessor as opposed to having three elected assessors, as the town has at present. Jack G. Reynolds, director of the county's Real Property Tax Service, will be present at the hearing to answer questions. The board has voted to decide the question by public referendum, at a date to be set.

It was announced that Francis Mulvaney of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service will be at the next meeting of the Town Planning Board Tuesday, March 16. He will review the flood plan survey, and town residents are invited.

Supervisor George Majestic was given permission to organize the town's summer beautification program, a state-aided project.

Several letters were read objecting to the use of snowmobiles on town roads.

Majestic distributed samples of a law for the formation of a conservation commission for the Town of Gardiner, and action is expected at the next regular meeting.

Accidental Fire Death Verdict

WEST SHOKAN

A verdict of accidental death was ruled today by Ulster County Coroner Henry S. Hartley after he and State Police BCI officers from the Kingston Zone Headquarters had established identity of a man who perished in fire that destroyed his home on Route 28A.

The victim of the Tuesday night blaze was Raymond Kelder, 60, who resided in this community many years, police said. The body was charred when found in the smoldering debris by firemen from the Olive Fire Company.

Kelder was alone in the one-story frame residence when fire of undetermined origin erupted time before positive identification was determined.

Fire units in charge of Chief Albert Fox were dispatched to the scene shortly after 10 p.m. Tuesday after neighbors saw flames shooting from the house next to the Watson Hollow Inn. When firefighters arrived they found the building engulfed in flames.

Volunteers were at the scene until about 3 a.m. yesterday. Water was pumped 1,000 feet from a creek in the area to douse the flames. Firemen directed hoselines on a garage about four feet from the burning building on a neighbor's property. The garage was saved.

The charred body was found in water in the cellar where it apparently had dropped as the floor collapsed. It was some

New York Education Board Avoids Layoff of 17,000

NEW YORK (UPI)—The city Board of Education, dipping into the next fiscal year budget for $25 million, has avoided laying off up to 17,000 teachers and other personnel.

The board also said Wednesday it was considering a plan to prevent a similar money problem next year, but did not elaborate.

The plan to save the jobs was proposed by Controller Abraham D. Beame. City Corporation Counsel J. Lee Rankin had assured him it would be legal to pay teachers salaries for the last of June out of the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Mayor John V. Lindsay had no immediate comment on the announcement, although earlier he called such a proposal "stopgap financial juggling."

The jobs of 11,000 substitute teachers paid by the day and 6,000 regular teachers and other personnel were to have been eliminated beginning last Monday, however they kept their jobs, at least temporarily, because of a court order obtained by a community school board.

The board said it believed it had a plan which "if expedited by the proper authorities will result in substantial additional income which will resolve this year's problem and prevent a similar problem next year." It did not give details.

The Board of Education had a reported deficit of $36.2 million before the saving of $25 million was made.

Chancellor Harvey B. Scribner said other cuts may be necessary, but none affecting school children would be made this year.

Egypt Calls on the Big Four To Influence Israeli Pullback

By United Press International

Egypt called today for the Big Four powers to use their influence to get Israel to agree to withdraw from all Arab territories captured during the 1967 Middle East war.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said this request was conveyed to the representatives of Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union in Cairo and New York.

The newspaper said the Big Four should concentrate on getting Israel's written commitment to withdraw rather than discussing peace guarantees or a renewal of the cease-fire at this time.

There has been no fighting along the Suez Canal despite the end of the formal caase-fire Sunday night.

Al Ahram said the United States was increasing its efforts to convince Israel to adopt the American position which would include a pullback to the prewar boundaries with only minor changes.

Israel foreign minister Abba Eban denied, however, in an interview with United Press International in Jerusalem, that there was any United States pressure on Israel.

Eban called the peace negotiations under U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring "surrealistic" and compared the United Nations to a business firm "in which the Arabs have 25 shares and Israel one."

The Israeli embassy in Washington issued a policy paper Wednesday indicating it would not accede to appeals from U.N. Secretary-General Thant or Jarring for total withdrawal from arab lands.

Egypt toughened its negotiating stance Wednesday by withdrawing its offer to reopen the Suez Canal. Egyptian government spokesman Mounir Hafez said the offer was contingent on Israel's agreeing to return Arab territories.

Overhaul of Courts Asked by President

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —President Nixon called for a major streamlining of the nation's court operations today, likening the current chaotic system to "trying to brush back a flood with a broom."

He endorsed establishment of a national center for state courts to conduct research and exchange information on procedural problems.

He also recommended use of "parajudges"—trained administrators working under the supervision of attorneys—to help relieve judges of some of their administrative burdens.

Prison Reform Asked

"A system of criminal justice that can guarantee neither a speedy trial nor a safe community cannot excuse its failure by pointing to an elaborate system of safeguards for the accused," Nixon said in a speech prepared for the National Conference on the Judiciary.

"Justice dictates not only that the innocent man go free, but that the guilty be punished for his crime," the President added.

Nixon again called for reform of the nation's prisons, which he said too long have been "warehouses for human rubbish" which merely furnish inmates "an advanced course in crime."

Nixon addressed the group at the conference center here following an hour helicopter flight from Washington.

His audience at the four-day conference consisted of 600 judges, lawyers and law enforcement officials from practically every state and level of government.

GOPers Not Sure How on Welfare

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Republicans in the GOP controlled legislature aren't sure how to do it, but they agree that cuts must be made in Gov. Rockefeller's proposed welfare budget for the next fiscal year.

Some of the suggested methods may not be practical — or even legal — but they are designed to lop off millions of dollars from the recommended welfare budget of $1.3 billion.

In the Senate, some GOP senators headed by William T. Smith, R-Big Flats, chairman of the Social Services Committee, seek a reduction of at least $100 million in the welfare budget. These cuts would make up about half of the $200 million in economies the Senate may suggest, sources said, in Rockefeller's $8.45-billion budget plan.

Majority Republicans in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee proposed $200 million in cuts last week in the total state budget and are believed ready to ask $400 million more in reductions — many aimed at the welfare budget.

There have been proposals in both the Assembly and the Senate to reduce the level of payments to families with dependent children, who are the largest consumers of welfare funds. At the same time, these lawmakers would retain the current levels for the aged, blind and disabled, whose care is paid from the welfare budget.

Gov. Rockefeller's legal staff, when asked about this procedure, wondered if it would stand court tests. They doubted whether one federally funded welfare program — such as aid to dependent children — could be cut under the law without cutting all welfare programs supported by federal funds.

At the same time, lawmakers express legal reservations about an idea advanced by Rockefeller's staff to enable communities to deny welfare benefits to newcomers on the ground of health emergencies, such as dangerous overcrowding in housing.

These lawmakers, Smith among them, feel that the courts may reject such a program for the same reasons that they threw out residency requirements for welfare. Residency requirements were quashed, the courts ruled, because all citizens are entitled to equal protection under the law.

The discussion of the welfare problem consumed much of the attention of the legislators during the day Wednesday, though there were these other developments:

— Democrats in the Assembly offered $565 million in reductions in Rockefeller's proposed state budget. They also asked consideration of tax reform measures that, they said, would produce $196 million in additional revenue for the state.

— A measure was approved in the Assembly to allow the state to regulate noise when it is considered harmful to health.

— The Assembly voted to drop restrictions on purchases of smokeless gunpowder used by hunters who reload their own shells.

Rockefeller's welfare budget for next year asked for $324 million more than in the current year. Of the increase, $26.9 million would be for a 7.2 per cent cost-of-living increase for those on welfare. Funds also are included to raise the assistance grants to a single level statewide.

Currently, the welfare payments for a family of four — typically a mother with three small children — range from $204 a month in Buffalo up to $231 a month in New York City, plus funds for rent and heating. Rockefeller wants to raise the level to $248 a month statewide.

Republican lawmakers have no choice about setting a single statewide level of welfare payments — the courts have mandated it — but they are thinking about a much lower figure than $248 a month and perhaps lower than the $231 a month now in New York City.

Here again there may be trouble with federal courts, who have frowned on cutting welfare standards that have been established. Smith suggests that this problem could be avoided by merely setting a statewide level at $231 a month, and then not providing all the state funds needed to pay it. Under this tactic, the welfare payment could be reduced, for example, to $207 a month — the level now existing in most upstate counties.

Other suggestions include a tough enforcement of requirements determining whether the person is poor enough to receive welfare and a new program to provide jobs to welfare recipients.

Reagan Says Work Key to the Problem

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan says welfare in the United States has failed because it has no goal.

The Republican governor has proposed a welfare overhaul program for California which he says can be a model for the nation.

Its purpose, he says, is "to see how close you can come to make welfare eliminate the need for itself."

The key is found in one word: work.

Reagan's program includes a public work force for able-bodied welfare recipients who won't or can't get jobs or participate in job training projects. It would be something like the Depression era Works Progress Administration.

"If you check back to the pre-World War II days, you'll find that WPA, with all the jokes they may want to tell about it, was far more successful than it was unsuccessful," Reagan said in an interview Wednesday.

"And it had virtually replaced welfare."

But since World War II the welfare system has grown with no purpose, the 60-year-old govenor said.

"It's just gone on treating the problem as if all they're supposed to do is perpetuate these people on the dole."

Reagan calls it "social tinkering" by those who dream of a totally unpoor, undiseased society.

"I have no quarrel with the dream" he said. "I just think that some of the dreamers were impractical."

Reagan said his program would have real purpose, with welfare recipients earning their monthly checks by performing useful work—in the environmental field, for example.

"And I think, darn it, it's a benefit spiritually to the individual. I know everybody wants to sneer at this, all the do-gooders that howl about materialism and who are all too often the materialists themselves.

"They seem to think that just feeding someone and putting a roof over their heads is all that is required. But the recipients are human beings with the need to have pride, self-respect and things of the spirit."

At present, welfare rules prevent the state from requiring any of its 2.4 million recipients to work. The Reagan plan, facing a severe test in the Democratic-controlled legislature, aims to save $740 million in federal, state and local funds in a welfare budget that now totals more than $3 billion annually.

Reagan said he has seen no other welfare reform proposal, including President Nixon's family assistance plan, that would do anything but add to the complexity and intensify the dilemma of welfare.

The governor said he opposes the idea of a guaranteed minimum welfare grant, such as proposed nationally in the family assistance plan, or any type of guaranteed annual wage.

Officials were intrigued with the guaranteed wage concept, Reagan said, because they thought it would do away with the welfare structure.

Engineered Food

To hear the experts tell it, the day may not be far when the animal can be eliminated as "the middleman" in the food industry and engineered foodstuffs, together with fortified natural foods, can provide a major source of protein food in the United States and throughout the world.

Executives of the food industry recited the benefits of their budding products to the Senate Nutrition subcommittee, while they pleaded for lifting of federal regulations they said are impeding their efforts to produce more nutritious and cheaper foods.

For instance, when a steer eats soybean meal, it converts the protein content into steak at an efficiency of about seven per cent, but if a human ate the meal directly, "the efficiency would jump some 70 per cent." said Paul L. Parker, a senior vice president of General Mills, Inc. Various firms manufacture textured vegetable proteins into simulated bacon bits, hamburger and enriched macaroni which may exceed even meat in nutrition, are cheaper and duplicate the mouth-feel, flavor and color of the original, according to Dr. Walter A. Compton, president of Miles Laboratories, Inc.

Public policy thus is being nurtured over this question of engineered foods. We will have to know much more about these products but we must not close our ears and our palates to their possible benefits.

Working for Tax Collector

You earn $10,000 a year. Your work year is 250 days. That comes to $40 a day for an 8-hour day. How do you spend your $40-a-day earnings? The Tax Foundation, Inc., a private research organization, found that the average householder allots his daily earnings about like this:

For taxes $13.05, or the wages for 2 hours and 37 minutes in an 8-hour, $40 day.

Food and tobacco, $5.30, or one hour and 4 minutes' wages.

Housing, $5.15, or one hour and 3 minutes' wages.

Transportation, $3.10, or 37 minutes' wages.

Clothing, $2.10, or 26 minutes' wages.

Medical, $1.90, or 21 minutes' wages.

Recreation, $1.60, or 19 minutes' wages.

All other, $7.80, or one hour and 33 minutes' wages.

Thus you work longer to pay your taxes than you do for any other necessity—food, housing, clothing, medical, recreation and all others. That last includes savings and sundries of all kinds.

The daily taxation bite of $13.05 is divided, $8.70 to pay the federal government expenses and $4.35 the state and local governments. So you can allocate a third of the payments for your total tax expenses to state and city purposes, and two-thirds for federal uses.

Unanimous approval by a House judiciary subcommittee of a proposed constitutional amendment, to lower the voting age to 18 years in all elections, was accomplished at the first meeting of the group. The rare speed indicated the urgency with which the amendment will be pushed to try to beat the 1972 elections.

The Boy Scouts, though congressionally chartered, have only now, for the first time received a federal grant of $700,000 to train and pay jobless or underemployed persons to be Scout leaders. Scouting has always meant the idealism of volunteer counsellors. Our young lads deserve that much quality of character be maintained. Scout leadership is born in the heart, not the purse.

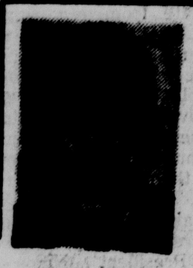

BERRY'S WORLD

"Well, one good thing—if you get to be President, you don't have to go on any more fact-finding tours!"

"At Least It Won't Leak!"

David Lawrence Says
President Has Basic Power To Defend United States

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is repeatedly being accused in Congress of ignoring the Constitution. Opposition members insist that he should obtain authority to carry on extensive military operations in Indo-China. But a close reading of the Constitution shows that the President of the United States has the responsibility for protecting the American people and, as commander-in-chief of the Armed Forces, has the right to use the Army, Navy and Air Force to maintain the defense of this country.

The only reference to war in the Constitution is in the section which says that "Congress shall have power to declare war." But, as has been apparent for many years, the enemy doesn't wait for such a "declaration" before initiating hostile moves, and the United States can interpose its forces ahead of time and possibly prevent a war.

The mere presence of American armed services in various parts of the world is a warning that the United States is prepared to respond immediately to an attack. The Senate itself agreed with this principle when it ratified the North Atlantic Treaty and gave the President the power to repel aggression against any member of NATO, without asking for a declaration of war.

The Constitution provides not merely that the President is "comander-in-chief" of the armed forces but that the Executive Branch of the government is obligated to protect each of the states "against invasion." The President decides on the placement of armed forces in a manner likely to thwart an attack. This is a judgment which helps him carry out his Constitutional responsibility in protecting the states of the Union.

Congress, of course, has the Constitutional authority to "raise and support armies," and to "provide and maintain a navy," and to make administrative rules for "the government and regulation" of the armed services. But the basic power to defend the United States is placed in the hands of the President and not any committee of Congress.

On the question of communication with Congress and its committees, the Constitution says that the President "shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

There is no provision in the Constitution that makes it obligatory for the Executive Branch to furnish all its information, including secret data and military plans, to a Congressional committee or to anybody else.

The big problem before America today is not whether the war is being extended into Cambodia or Laos for a few weeks as a protective measure for the South Vietnamese and American troops. The real issue is whether the nations of the world will be sufficiently impressed with American policy and will refrain from taking irresponsible action that could cause a major war.

The President and the Department of State in the Johnson Administration as well as in the Nixon Administration have felt the necessity of proving that the United States has not abandoned its interest in either Asia or Europe. The importance of preventing a third world war may not be generally realized by the anti-war demonstrators, but the destruction of human life in a global conflict would be many thousands of times what it has been in Indo-China. The sacrifices made in helping the South Vietnamese, therefore, are fully justified as an essential part of American foreign policy.

Members of Congress have uttered all kinds of criticism on the course of the war in Southeast Asia. Some have demanded immediate withdrawal of troops or have sought to impose restrictions on military operations. But most of this is speechmaking of a politically motivated nature. The fact remains that progress is being made toward ending American participation in the Vietnam war.

No committee of Congress has the power to conduct the foreign policy of the United States. Congress itself can, to be sure, withhold funds and plunge the nation into a situation which might help to bring on a catastrophic war. Thus far, no two-thirds majority necessary for such a purpose has emerged in Congress, and the American armed services are slowly but surely accomplishing their main objective in South Vietnam.

Jack Anderson Says
Chou En-Lai Visit to Hanoi Stirs International Rumors

WASHINGTON — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's dramatic visit to Hanoi adds new menace to the rumblings that Red China might intervene in Laos as she did once before in Korea.

In the past, the North Vietnamese have hesitated to bring the Chinese too deeply into the Indochina conflict. Now they are turning openly to Peking for support in case the allied escalation in Laos becomes critical.

Nevertheless, the national intelligence estimate, which guides President Nixon, discounts the danger of Chinese intervention. This secret assessment is based upon the best intelligence available to the U.S. Here is the reasoning behind the optimistic estimate:

● The North Vietnamese are reluctant to increase their dependence upon Peking, which would heighten Chinese influence over their affairs. This would also upset Moscow which has furnished most of North Vietnam's military hardware. The Hanoi rulers have always tried to walk a delicate tightrope between Moscow and Peking. They also haven't overcome the ancient Vietnamese distrust of the Chinese. The U.S. view, therefore, is that the Hanoi threat to involve the Chinese in Indochina is a bluff.

● There has been no sign of military movement inside China toward the Indochina border. Indeed, the movement has been in the other direction, toward the Soviet frontiers. Although Peking has deployed a large force in South China, these divisions apparently haven't been reinforced or put on alert since the Laos invasion.

Chinese Thaw?

● The U.S. estimate is that a thaw, rather than a new freeze, is beginning to develop in Chinese-American relations. The hard-liners have been replaced by pragmatists in many key position in Peking. The American section of the Chinese Foreign Ministry, for example, has been taken over by a professional diplomat who is more realist than doctrinaire Maoist. There is cautious optimism that Washington's friendly overtures to Peking may bring a positive response.

● The warnings that preceded Chinese involvement in the Korean War were far more ominous than the current warnings over Laos. There is little doubt in Washington that China would send "volunteers" to stop an outright U.S. invasion of Laos or North Vietnam, but no such operation is planned. On the contrary, U.S. troops are pulling out of Vietnam.

Throughout the U.S. military involvement in Indochina, Washington and Peking have had secret understandings. American and Chinese diplomats have been in constant communication in Warsaw. They have managed, in each crisis, to bridge the great gulf between the two nations.

True, the Chinese diplomats have been rigid as steel beams. Often, they have spoken less for the sake of the listening Americans than for the dogmatists back on mainland China who read the transcripts. One participant has described the diplomatic encounters to us as "not so much negotiating as like listening to Radio Peking."

Still, the formal talks and informal contacts have cleared up misunderstandings, prevented miscalculations and provided a clear channel of communication.

JFK Warned China

The late President Kennedy, for instance, asked the U.S. negotiators to deliver a warning at the Warsaw meeting in March, 1961, that the U.S. would intervene in Laos with military force unless the Chinese permitted a cease-fire. The Chinese brought back to the next meeting word that Peking would accept an international guarantee of Laotian neutrality.

For the moment at least, this ended the Laotian crisis that had the world on tenterhooks in 1961.

When ex-President Johnson began bombing North Vietnam, he sent assurances through Warsaw that the U.S. had no designs on the territory of either North Vietnam or Red China. This was delivered at the Feb. 25, 1965, meeting where U.S. Ambassador John Cabot emphasized the U.S. didn't intend to destroy North Vietnam nor to invade China.

Measured by agreements, the Warsaw meetings have been a dismal failure. Yet there has been communications. Even during the long intervals between sessions, the channel remains open.

The Chinese may deliver a protest note, for example, that a U.S. plane has intruded into their air space. Or the U.S. might notify the Chinese that a new satellite is scheduled to pass over their territory. As a diplomatic courtesy, copies of Senate hearings on China were delivered to the Chinese embassy in Warsaw.

After a U.S. plane mistakenly hit Chinese territory across the Indochina border, the exchange of messages was at least circumspect if not conciliatory.

At any time, the U.S. embassy in Warsaw need merely pick up the telephone to make contact with the Chinese embassy.

Footnote: In 1966, U.S. Ambassador Jorn Gronouski tried to put the Warsaw talks on a more friendly, informal basis. "Let's forget about Taiwans and Vietnams," he urged, "and sit down and have a few drinks and tell each other about our private lives." The press needn't be told about it, he offered, if this would spare the Chinese embarrassment. But the invitation was declined.

Henry J. Taylor Says
Truth About U.S. Productivity

The respected American Economic Foundation is revealing the best-kept secret in our educational system. It is publishing a chart showing how America produces.

Ignorance of this production fact is so appalling, widespread and dangerous that the chart does an enormous public service.

We are in a neck-and-neck race between education and self-destruction. The result depends on how many people grasp the truth about how America produces.

Recently research by an advertising agency showed that the most persuasive selling words are these 11: You, easy, money, save, love, new, discovery, results, proven, health and guarantee. Isn't there room for the simple word, truth? For, as humorist Artemus Ward said long ago, "It ain't the things we don't know that cause the trouble. It's the things we think we know that ain't so."

The false idea about how our country produces starts with the misconception that the government is a producer. Hokus, hokey, hokum.

The government — any government—produces nothing. It is merely made to sound that way. The government has no wealth and creates none. Wealth is created by the people. The windbag boys notwithstanding, anything a government says it will give to the people it must first take away from the people.

The government's circulation of money is the circulation of tax dollars, although many politicians would as soon fight a sabre-tooth tiger single-handed as admit this. Moreover, the currency-rotating process passes the people's tax money through a sieve of government overhead that drains off more of its value all the time.

It costs the government so much to run itself that, no matter what the spending agencies do with the tax money left over, great loss is sustained by those who supply the money in the first place.

The corollary of this false government-is-a-producer idea is the false idea that in American corporate life the workers get only the crumbs.

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education has surveyed this falsity. And you would hardly believe the scope, fixedness, intensity (even ferocity) of it in university faculties, student bodies and the public as a whole.

Tragically, the truth regarding the workers' proportion is neglected in our classrooms. In fact, much American education has become merely a leisurely inquiry as to whether our system of economic life is really the best or not. It suggests we're not sure, and then comes the "workers get only the crumbs" idea.

There is no excuse for literate America to be as mixed up about this as an Eskimo eating an artichoke. You don't have to be Einstein to understand it is false. Professors certainly should, so should students, and so should anyone who seeks the facts. But apparently we've been long brainwashed into the false idea, like a clever performer making his audience strain their ears to listen to a gnat while the padded feet of a heavily loaded camel recedes conveniently into the distance.

Well, the only way to meet the Big Lie is with the Big Truth. And at long last the factual disclosure and simple arithmetic of the American Economic Foundation's chart shows the real division of corporate income to workers throughout the country.

All productivity is based on three factors: (a) natural resources, whose form is changed by the expenditure of (b) human energy, with the aid of (c) tools. In short, natural resources, plus human energy, multiplied by tools equals man's material welfare.

The chart shows the flow in billions of dollars of materials, man-hours worked and invested savings into companies. It shows the tools' value ($70 billion) and the goods and services that come out. It shows the division, after taxes, between profit and payroll.

Vital in disproving the false idea that workers get the crumbs, it documents the truth: In the profit-payroll division, nearly 88 per cent is payroll. It's enough to make Karl Marx turn over in his grave.

The only way to eat an elephant is to cut it into pieces and have a lot of people chew on it—the more the better. So it is with the Big Truth. You can get it, I am glad to say, from the American Economic Foundation, 51 East 42nd Street, New York City.

Britain's Prime Minister Acts To Offset Soviet Sea Threat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath is one Western statesman who has the courage of his convictions.

His decision to sell marine helicopters to South Africa was condemned by anti-colonialists" in and out of the United Nations. But it put the spotlight on another strategic area where the Russians are expanding their sea power — the Indian Ocean.

Almost unnoticed, the waters south of Asia have become studded with Soviet warships. Only three years ago this would have been as big a surprise as the presence of the American Navy on the Volga River.

However, when Britain's previous Labor government decided in 1968 to pull out "East of Suez," the Russians, as always, were ready to plug the gap.

They quickly established naval bases in Yemen, Berbera, Somalia and Scotora, a strategic island at the entrance of the Red Sea.

After his recent visit to Washington, Heath agreed with the Nixon administration that it has become too dangerous to let Russia go unchecked.

He therefore ignored the United Nations embargo and decided to go ahead with limited arms sales to South Africa. This Britain is obligated to do under the 1955 Simonstown agreement.

To no one's surprise, UN Secretary General U Thant — who seldom sees or hears evil where Russia is concerned — rebuked the prime minister.

India's Premier Indira Gandhi threatened to withdraw from the Commonwealth which ostensibly supplanted the empire once ruled from London.

So did the president of Tanzania, Julius Nyerere and other African leaders. They regard Pretoria's apartheid as a greater menace to world peace than Russia's oppressive colonial empire.

Heath, wisely, turned a deaf ear to their threats. He clearly believes that in time of crisis South Africa will be a more loyal ally than India or the African members of the Commonwealth.

Besides, Britain's Conservative government seems to have concluded that the Commonwealth is as dead as the dinosaur anyway.

As the British see it, there has been a continuing shift in Russia's favor in the strategic balance at sea which has given Moscow a new option to intervene in the Indian Ocean.

They fear Russia's potential capacity to launch an offensive in the crowded shipping lanes around the Cape of Good Hope which is the main route for West Europe's oil supplies.

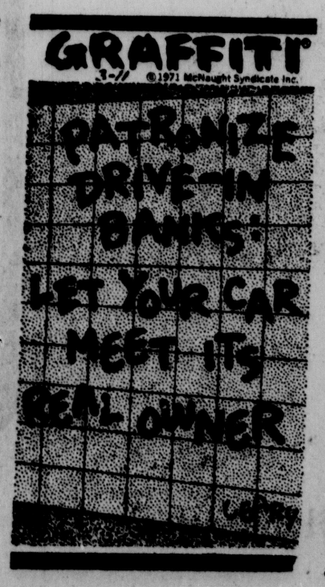

Admittedly, Russia does not yet dominate the seas. But the Kremlin leaders believe that naval power brings political rewards.

The Soviet Mediterranean fleet and Communist political influence in the Mediterranean have grown in less than a decade from nothing to a significant force.

It is certainly imprudent to assume that Russia's naval presence in the Indian Ocean will not grow the same way.

Right now the reopening of the Suez Canal is the Russian main target at the Middle Eastern peace talks. This will enable them to link their Mediterranean and Indian Ocean fleets.

In the Indian Ocean — as in the Mediterranean and Caribbean seas — the Kremlin leaders are testing the value of their navy as a power symbol.

Rocky May Run, If Nixon Steps Aside

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — It really should surprise no one that Gov. Rockefeller now admits he's been thinking about running for President next year — if President Nixon should step aside.

After all, that's what the political insiders were saying last year, while Rockefeller was running for a fourth term as governor. Even the man in the street was speculating openly.

The question asked most often of reporters covering the Rockefeller campaign was this: "Why is he running?"

And the questioner usually compounded it by pointing out that, after three arduous terms as governor and two shots at the presidency, the 62-year-old Rockefeller seemed more like a candidate to retire from public life and enjoy his multi-millions.

"You don't suppose," the questioner would conclude, "that he still wants to run for President, do you?"

Well, you couldn't get Rockefeller to admit it then — or even to speculate on it. He would say something like, "I had my tries, I'm supporting President Nixon now."

His avowed reason for wanting to retain the burdens of the governorship were that he relished tough challenges and that he wanted to finish works that he had begun.

Persons close to Rockefeller, however, were not above dropping a few hints of lingering presidential ambition. They would point out that Rockefeller was caught unprepared by President Johnson's abrupt decision to serve only one full term.

"It could happen again," they would say, somewhat wistfully.

They were overjoyed when Rockefeller walloped Arthur Goldberg in the gubernatorial election by a 750,000-vote plurality, thus showing that he was a bigger winner than ever.

After the election, there was even more hopeful whispering in the Rockefeller camp that Nixon might botch up his job — the national economic decline was a focal point — and thus decide to follow in Johnson's retirement footsteps.

The governor's public posture, meanwhile, was that he was rooting for Nixon to succeed — for the good of the nation. But Rockefeller did not hesitate to blame the federal government for financial stinginess that he said had plunged New York and other states into "fiscal crisis."

Nixon countered neatly by adopting Rockefeller's revenue-sharing program and making it a major personal cause. The maneuver really surprised Rockefeller, who thus was at least partially disarmed.

Capital Punishment

Editor, The Freeman:

The statement of the Kingston Area Council of Churches on capital punishment has drawn fire from a number of sources including Pastor O. Phillips whose letter was published in The Freeman March 1, and the Rev. Mr. Brooks Henry who attempted to defend capital punishment on scriptural grounds over WGHQ on Feb. 28. I write lest any reader get the mistaken impression that holy scripture endorses a practice as barbaric as capital punishment.

Pastor Phillips draws the distinction between God's Word and man's thinking. In his statement God's Word of love forgiveness and acceptance has given way to the worldly philosophy of legalism. The fact that he uses the bible to support the arguments does not make those arguments biblical. Like the pharisees of old, pastors Phillips and Henry have sought out the finest interpretations of the letter but have neglected the weightier matters of justice, mercy and faith. Jesus was constantly at odds with the pharisees because the content of his gospel was not (and is not) law. The content of the gospel is love not. law.

Their basic error is in the way they approach the word of God; but even within their own legalistic frame of reference they have misinterpreted the scriptures. They have both pointed out that the old testament law requires the death penalty, and they claim that this requirement has not been revoked. If that is the case, would they require the death penalty for each of the 15 different crimes specified — in the bible? Would they require the method of death prescribed for these crimes? If not why not? Is the law binding upon us or is it not?

The Rev. Mr. Henry even takes his proof into the new Testament. He refers to us Romans 13. These words are very necessary and helpful but they are also open to all kinds of abuse. They can be read in many different ways which do not square with Paul's own ministry and witness. To quote Romans 13 Mr. Henry has had to bypass Romans 12 in which these words are written: "beloved never avenge yourself but leave it to the wrath of God: and it is written "vengeance is mine I will repay says the Lord." It is pretty difficult to square that with the advocacy of capital punishment.

It is significant that neither these interpretors looked into the life, ministry or teaching of Jesus for authority to prove that capital punishment is permitted by the bible. The gospel is full of relevant material and all of it says that capital punishment runs counter to spirit of Jesus had said "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth' but I say to you do not resist one who is evil."

This passage is simply the most difinitive of the whole series which lay the emphasis on forgiveness. How far can you read in gospels without finding teaching, which says that we ought to forgive? Again and again Jesus makes it clear that we will be forgiven only as we have forgiven. To try to separate public life from personal life or to use some other device to show that these teachings of Jesus do not really apply to the issue of capital punishment is to dodge the clear and apparent meaning of the work of Jesus set down repeatedly in the gospels. This is truly to prefer man's theory and philosophy to the word of God.

Sincerely,
REV. JAMES VEATCH

What's Right With America

Editor, The Freeman:

Under the American way of life you are an individual, a free man, with freedom of choice. You have the opportunity to build your own future, strive for personal achievement. Your dreams and ambitions have meaning.

One of the great human freedoms that is granted to all of us in America is the freedom of religion. In America one can worship God openly and freely according to your beliefs and traditions. America was founded by men who believed in God. Moral law is the basis of our free society. Under Communism religious beliefs are greatly surpressed. The communists deny the existence of God. There were 54,000 churches in Russia prior to the Revolution of 1917. By the year 1930 there were only 5,000 churches in operation. Today there are a few more thousand than this, but the religious institutions are permitted to function, are under close State observation. Judaic-Christian believers are persecuted and harassed.

In America, a man's home is his castle. The dream of owning your own home has become a reality for the majority of the people. Six out of 10 American families own their own homes. Under communism living space is a luxury. Only the elite have adequate homes.

At least one third of a man's day is spent on his job. Therefore it is so important that you have a choice of occupation. In our Free Society you can choose that your own occupation. If working conditions and salaries are not suitable you can bargain with your employer. If you wish you can change your job. Under communism the State controls your occupation. You can be told where to work and when to work. The State sets wages, and decides working conditions. Slave labor is used to meet production.

Being a citizen of a free nation you have the privilege and the duty to participate in your government. The Constitution of the United States guarantees us freedom of speech, freedom of press and assembly. Free elections provide the opportunity for the individual citizen to make changes in policy-making personnel of government. Police powers are limited by law and there is no national police force in the United States due to the fact that police function is under control of local communities and the states. You are offered a trial by jury. There is no restriction on the movement of individuals within the nation.

In America one can own a share of business and industry. You can get into business for yourself. You can invest your own savings in business ventures and in real estate for income producing purposes. More than 20 million Americans share in the ownership of American business and industry. Under communism the State owns and controls all industry and business enterprises. You, as an individual cannot participate in business ownership or share in business profits.

What's right with America? Plenty. America offers the greatest opportunities and personal fulfillment of any country in the world.

For God and Country,

U.S. Actions Echo in Kremlin

WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Nixon is convinced that a Russian accommodation with the United States depends to considerable degree on the way we handle ourselves in the Indochina war:

If we cut and run, the Russians won't be interested in accommodation. They will test and probe for U.S. weaknesses (in will) with increasing vigor, perhaps so strongly they will miscalculate and precipitate a confrontation.

Nixon is known to believe, however, that if we show our determination to achieve what we believe in Vietnam, there is hope for a reasonable arrangement with Moscow.

(Providing he includes with that a willingness to take unpredictable political risks such as the Cambodia and Laos sweeps and the suppression bombings in North Vietnam.)

Nixon and his closest advisers are convinced Leonid Brezhnev and his fellows in the Kremlin inner circle are constantly on the watch for signs of deterioration (or strengthening) of U.S. will.

This White House circle is convinced:

That the original Cuban missile crisis came about because the United States showed a lack of resoltuion at Bay of Pigs.

The apparent lack of U.S. determination in several major and minor international crises led to the Russian adventurism which precipitated the Middle East crisis and probably to the recent Soviet moves aimed at building a missile submarine base at Cienfuegos in Cuba.

Nixon and his foreign strategists hold that until Soviet misconceptions are clarified, there may be little or no progress in easing Communist pressures on Berlin, in settling the Middle East confrontation, in strategic arms limitation, or in achieving peace in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

The President is known to believe that recent history shows conclusively that relations with the Soviet Union have consistently improved following incidents in which the United States showed steady nerves and a strong resolve (as in the Berlin blockade).

More recently, Nixon's advisers believe that blunt talk to the Soviet leaders concerning Cienfuegos led, temporarily at least, to a Kremlin decision not to go ahead with the Cuban sub base. But this agreement will last only so long as the men in the Kremlin are convinced Nixon has the will (and the national backing to enforce it).

Feed Grain Signup Starts

KINGSTON

The signup period for the 1971 feed grain and wheat programs began on March 1 and will continue through April 9, according to John Snyder, chairman of the Ulster County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Notices of feed grain bases, domestic wheat allotments, projected yields and payment rates have been mailed to eligible producers. Program explanation leaflets were included with the notices.

Eligible producers may sign up at the county ASCS office at 54 John Street Monday through Friday from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my mother and our sister, Florance Davis Johnson, who passed away 12 years ago today, March 11, 1959.

Lonely thoughts of you this day,
Filled with heartfelt prayer,
But remembrance of one so dear,
Often brings a silent tear.
May the good Lord keep you in His care.

State Agency Proposes New Buffalo Stadium

BUFFALO (AP) — The state's Urban Development Corp. (UDC) proposed today that an open-air sports stadium seating between 65,000 and 80,000 and costing from $23 million to $27.5 million be built in suburban Hamburg.

The UDC, a state agency that has the power to issue bonds for major public construction, made the recommendation in a report to Erie County officials.

The report said the target area was adjacent to the county fairgrounds, 15 miles south of downtown Buffalo.

Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of the Buffalo Bills, has threatened to move the National Football League team to another city.

He has given Erie County until March 25, the opening day of an NFL owners' meeting, to make a firm commitment to build a new stadium.

The UDC report said the stadium could be built in time for the 1973 football season, or possibly a year earlier with "expeditious action."

The cost, it said, would depend on "the seating capacity and further exploration of subsoil conditions."

Latin Prize

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (AP) — Retired Latin teacher Florence M. Andrews has given $2,000 to this city's board of education for the establishment of a Latin prize for high school pupils. Miss Andrews is 101.

Paltz Shakespeare Festival Will Start Saturday Night

NEW PALTZ — Opening Night of the Shakespeare Festival at State University College, New Paltz, Saturday 8:30 p.m. in Lecture Center 100, will feature ensembles of singers, dancers, instrumentalists, and readers, demonstrating the performing arts of Shakepeare's time.

The Brass Choir, led by Thomas Marabella, will provide incidental music of the Renaissance. The Chamber Singers, under the direction of David Randolf, will perform a program of Elizabethan medrigals. A college of the sonnets and songs of Shakespeare himself will be presented by the Shakespeare Readers, directed by Rose Irvine and Donald Wildy of the college faculty. The Cambridge Court Dancers, directed by Ingrid Brainard, will dance to the music of the Renaissance and in the style of 16th century dancing masters.

Adam Gillon, festival co-ordinator, will present the opening welcome, "Shakespeare Our Contemporary", setting forth the theme of the festival: Shakespeare is as important to our age as he was to his own.

Tickets for the Festival Night and for other events are available at the box office in the McKenna Theatre.

Steals Bread, Is Fined $100

NEW PALTZ — Two men and a youth were arrested Wednesday by Highland State Police on charges of petit larceny involving shoplifting of merchandise at local stores.

Kevin Mitchell, 18, of Yonkers, was accused of taking a 40-cent loaf of bread from the Grand Union Store. He pleaded guilty before Town Justice Rexford Schneider and was fined $100.

Anthony Dugo, 27, of Route 17, Monticello, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Justice Schneider. Dugo was accused of stealing a package of meat at the Grand Union store last Friday. Trooper D. E. Sandford arraigned the defendant before Justice Schneider.

Dugo pleaded guilty and was fined $100. He paid the fine and was released.

An incident at Barker's store Wednesday afternoon resulted in the arrest of two men, according to Highland troopers.

Richard M. Wipperfurth, 37, of Madison, Wisc., was arrested by Troper B. D. Mitchell on charges of conspiracy fourth degree, petit larceny and harassment. He was accused of taking stereo records from the local store and later causing a disturbance. Wipperfurth pleaded innocent before Justice Schneider, who fixed bail at $500 and adjourned hearing until March 19.

Arrested with Wipperfurth was Joseph E. Simpson, 38, of Burlington, N.J. He was booked for attempting to commit the crime of petit larceny and harassment. Wipperfurth reportedly left the store and drove off in a car driven by Simpson. Area authorities were alerted and the two men were apprehended on the Thruway and returned here for arraignment.

Simpson also pleaded innocent and bail was sets at $750 pending a hearing.

Tri-City Girl OK After New Kidney

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A 12-year-old girl from the Capital District was reported in satisfactory condition today after receiving a kidney from her 47-year-old mother during a five-hour operation at the Albany Medical Center Hospital Wednesday.

The name of the donor and recipient were withheld at the family's request. The daughter, who weighs 50 pounds, had been in complete kidney failure for two years. She was kept alive by twice-weekly treatments with an artificial kidney.

She was the youngest person, and the smallest, to receive a kidney at the hospital. Sixteen kidney transplants have been performed at the hospital to date, and 14 of the recipients are living.

CC Task Forces Outline Action

KINGSTON — The drug and environment task forces of Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce's Total Community Development Program met Wednesday night in separate sessions at Gov. Clinton Hotel and outlined forms of action in their areas of concern.

The Drug Task Force headed by Co-Chairmen Lee Eric Yaple and Jon Lindberg reviewed three major concerns:

County implementation of the methadone program for treatment of addicts.

Education for adults on drug abuse.

Dr. Elmer S. McKay, chairman of the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council, who serves on the Task Force said funding and staffing were outlined in regard to the store front facility. In regard to the methadone treatment, Dr. McKay will be the guest speaker at the first meeting of the County Drug Commission on March 23 and the matter will be discussed. Methadone is a non-euphoric drug substitute for heroin and treatment is designed to block drug hunger.

In the education of adults field, the Task Force will correlate its efforts with the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council, which has an active adult education committee. They are planning a combined meeting Wednesday, March 24. They will discuss mutual problems and how they can help each other.

The Environment Task Force headed by Howard Rust made final arrangements for a Recycling Day for the collection of newspapers and aluminum tins this Saturday when door-to-door collections will be made. The collection center will be in Kingston High School parking lot.

Dr. Melvin Michaelson of Marist College reported to the group on a student project there using a four-block area of Poughkeepsie. He reported about 90 per cent cooperation of the residents in separating the materials collected.

Committees of the Task Force are studying the emission of smoke and fumes from the high school smoke stack; pollution from fumes coming from city buses and a market survey on wasteful packing.

The Task Force has scheduled a meeting with the County Planning Board on March 22 to discuss landfill versus recycling.

The next meeting of the Task Force will be held Wednesday, March 17 at 7:30 p. m. in Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Abandon Plans To Acquire Goshen Banks

BUFFALO (AP) — Marine Midland Banks Inc. has abandoned plans to acquire the National Banks of Orange & Ulster Counties in Goshen.

The company said last summer that the Goshen bank and its seven branches were to become part of Marine Midland Bank of Southeastern New York in Poughkeepsie. The firm gave no reason for the change in plans.

The company, in another announcement Wednesday, listed net 1970 incomes for its Western New York and New York City operations.

The bank holding company said Marine Midland-Western's net income was $14.6 million in 1970 compared to $13.9 million in 1969.

Marine-New York earned $13.7 million, a drop of about $94,000 from the previous year.

Lions Show — Historical Note

KINGSTON

A brochure featuring the history of the Kingston Lions Club will again be distributed this year at the 24th Annual Kingston Lions Exposition and Home Show.

The brochure will include contributions and community projects sponsored by the Lions, the activities of the 14 Lions committees and a list of the Lions code of ethics and objectives.

Containing more than 100 advertisers from throughout the Hudson Valley, the brochure will be distributed to all patrons of the Lions Exposition.

William Schenck is brochure chairman. Other committee members are Brian Smith, Gary Carlson and Harold Monashefsky. Advertising space in the brochure is still available.

This year's exposition will be held at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue April 27 through May 1. More than $5,000 in prizes will be offered, including a grand prize of $2,500.

More than 20,000 persons are expected to visit this year's event, which has as its theme, "The American Scene."

UCCC Schedules A Talk on Friday

STONE RIDGE

Joseph Campbell, Professor of Comparative Literature at Sarah Lawrence College, will speak on Symbolism of the Kundalini and the Tibetan Book of the Dead on Friday, March 19, at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

The talk, which is free and open to the public, will be held in Room 420 of the John Burroughs Science Building at 7:30 p.m. It is being sponsored by the Student Government Organization at the college and the Social Science Division.

The coordinators for the program are Stephen Moncure, S.G.O. president; H. Stephen Larsen, an Instructor of Psychology at UCCC; and Harry Matzen, a Professor of History at UCCC.

Professor Campbell studied under the late Professor Heinrich Robert Zimmer, who died in 1943. He edited many of the books written by Professor Zimmer, including Myths and Symbols in Indian Art and Civilization, Art of Indian Asia, and Philosophies of India.

The S.G.O.-sponsored lecture series at UCCC this Spring is based on a common theme — meaningful dimensions of human experience and the use of philosophies, techniques, and systems to transform them.

Previous lectures in the series have been given by Sensi Nakazano, a master of Japanese martial arts; and Dr. Bernard Aaronson, a clinical psychologist, who spoke on "Non Drug Induced Psychedelic Experience."

Future lecture sin the series will be announced.

Ronald Koster, director of continuing education at the college, meanwhile, announced three more spring courses to be offered.

They include Conversational Italian course meeting 10 Monday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 starting March 15.

Another is the Effective Group Organization and Parlimentary Procedure starting March 17 and continuing four Wednesday nights from 7 to 9:30.

The third is two secretarial refresher courses, one during daytime hours and another in the evening. The courses will begin March 15 and 16 respectively.

Information concerning all courses is available by contacting the college.

NEW PRIMARY SCHOOL — Voters in the Pine Bush School District which encompasses part of Southern Ulster County, have approved a $3,548,180 bond issue for a building program which will include a new 23-classroom primary school and the remodeling of the present Central School building. The new school will be built on a site containing approximately 23 acres of land. Harry Halverson Associates of 239 Fair Street are the architects. The school district includes the towns of Shawangunk and Gardiner and other areas of Orange and Sullivan Counties. The present Central School was built in 1941. The new school will also include a gymnasium, cafetorium with stage, a library, offices and other rooms. The vote on the bond issue earlier this week was 824 in favor of the project and 694 against.

Highland Area Jaycees Officially Chartered

HIGHLAND

The Highland Area Jaycees were officially chartered Saturday, Feb. 27, according to an announcement made recently.

All men enrolled in the local chapter prior to Feb. 27 are entitled to special charter membership, it was announced.

Instrumental in the chartering of the Highland Jaycees were District 2 president Stan Pruzan; Dennis Hebert and Bob Romer, extension chairmen, and Bill Kayma, District 2 membership chairman.

The stated purpose of the organization is the improvement of the communities in which chapters are located and the personal development of its members.

Persons interested in joining the Highland chapter of the Jaycees can obtain further information from Bill Halstead, chairman; Steve DeMare, secretary, or John Grillo, membership chairman.

Saugerties Chief's Night on March 30

SAUGERTIES

The annual Saugerties Fire Department's Chief's Night to honor the outgoing fire chief will be held Tuesday, March 30 at 8 p.m. in Saugerties VFW Hall, Livingston Street.

John J. Wood, a member of R. A. Snyder Fire Company, who has served as department chief for the past year will be honored at the testimonial dinner. He will be presented with the traditional gold watch and past chief's badge.

Principal speaker this year will be former Fire Commissioner Donald R. McCaig. The former member of the Village Board was also police commissioner at one time. He resigned from the board last year and currently serves as town GOP chairman.

Department Secretary Charles Granwehr said Village Clerk James V. Gage will serve as toastmaster.

Succeeding to the position of chief on April 1 will be John Kolano of Washington Hook and Ladder Co., an employe of the village Public Works Department. First assistant chief will be Ernest Dunn of C. A. Lynch Fire Company and second assistant is Edmund Whitaker of R. A. Snyder Fire Company.

State, county and town fire officials will be in attendance as guests of the department. The Auxiliary of Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, VFW, will serve the dinner.

Salvage Drive Of VFW to Aid Loyalty Fund

SAUGERTIES

The Loyalty Day Committee of VFW Post 5034 in Saugerties announces a Salvage Drive to be held on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Types of material desired include paper and any metals, such as brass, copper and steel. Persons having material are asked to call the VFW Hall, during the hours of the drive. Persons who will not be home at the time may call Co-Chairman James Armstrong. All proceeds will go to finance Loyalty Day, which is sponsored jointly by VFW Post 5034, it's Ladies Auxiliary and the Dads of Foreign Service Vets.

It was also announced that music for the dance scheduled for March 27 will be provided by the Nick Ferraro Band. Admission includes a buffet and refreshments. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Two Additions to Board For Rosendale Library

ROSENDALE

The Rosendale Library is now open on Saturday mornings from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. it was noted at the recent meeting of the library's Board of Trustees.

At the Board meeting, Mrs. Raymond LeFever and Mrs. Richard E. Lake were appointed to fill the unexpired terms of Mrs. Elsie Ingram and Richard E. Lake, respectively.

At an earlier meeting of the Rosendale Library Association, Mrs. Louis Mastro was reelected as a member of the Board for a second five-year term.

Other trustees include George Mollenhauer, chairman; Ernest Hopper, Michael Cooper and Walter Williams. Vernon Fresse is treasurer and Mrs. Anna May Auchmoody is secretary.

Beginning March 23, a Children's Reading Hour will be conducted at the library on Tuesdays from 10-11 a.m. under the supervision of Mrs. William D. Markle who holds a similar post with the Kingston Area Library.

The library it was noted, is currently open to town residents on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 to 5 p.m.; Monday through Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

Yearly membership charge for the library association is $1.

Augustine Firm Is Cited by Grange Mutual

KINGSTON

Roland A. Augustine has been named as one of the six top National Grange Mutual Insurance Company agents who collectively produced more than $2.2 million of premium written in 1970, according to an announcement made recently by Richard J. Missett, vice president and agency director.

Augustine, with offices at 255 Wall Street, was named as the sixth largest producer for the National Grange Mutual Insurance Company in the United States.

RETIREMENT ANNOUNCED — Paul J. Sullivan (L) manager of the Britts Kingston store congratulates Raymond H. Steward at the latter's gala retirement party held recently at the Capri Restaurant in Port Ewen. Steward, described by his co-workers as a "grand man," had worked at the Kingston store since its opening seven years ago. Steward handled all of the store's maintenance duties, and assumed much of the responsibility for carpentry and electrical work and display construction at the Kingston Plaza facility. Steward's co-workers chipped in and presented him with a leather chair to insure a "comfortable" retirement. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Site Problems Discussed At Highland Meeting

HIGHLAND

Renewed problems at the new K-4 school site went unresolved Tuesday night at a four hour meeting of the Highland Board of Education.

An engineer's report has revealed that a 640 foot long corregated culvert pipe, installed at the site last summer, is now deflecting at various angles and may collapse unless the problem is rectified.

Engineers have recommended that the pipe be repaired rather than replaced. But no one, according to Board of Education president John Elia, is willing to guarantee that the pipe will "maintain itself" once it's reparied.

The 84 inch diameter pipe, it was reported has collapsed by as much as 20 per cent in some sections. In early February, it was reported that the pipe could well collapse within 180 days.

Elia stated that if the pipe is repaired, put into use and then collapses, it could flood "half of Highland" and that replacement costs would exceed $100,000.

On the other hand, if the pipe is repaired, Elia said the school district and the Board of Education would be accepting "a second class job that does not conform to specifications."

Reason for the gradual collapse of the pipe is, according to Elia, "alleged improper impaction."

The Board of Education was told at last night's meeting that installation of a five foot smooth sleeve would rectify the problem, but contracters were unwilling to give the Board a written guarantee that the problem would not flare up again.

One of the questions the Board of Education must resolve, said Elia, is whether the contractor "has performed to the best of his abilities."

Elia indicated that the Board of Education may be forced to take the contractor, Rabena Construction Company, Inc., to court or stop payment if the matter is not resolved.

The new school building is expected to be completed in September but Elia noted that, if the pipe collapses or if they have to repair it, the roadways, parking lots and playgrounds would be inaccessible due to the repair work.

"Right now, we're soul searching," said Elia. "We want the project completed, but we may have to stick our necks out."

More than 25 taxpayers were at the meeting and, in Elia's words, "They were up in arms." "There could be a taxpayer's action against the entire Board," said Elia, "they could sue everyone of us if we don't do the job right."

The matter will be taken up again at a meeting next week and the Board will complete its unfinished business tomorrow night. Last night's Board meeting was adjourned at 12:30 a.m. until tomorrow night at 8 p.m.

Sheriff Gives Some Statistics On Auto Deaths of Children

KINGSTON

Sheriff William B. Martin in his continuing campaign relating to the safety of area residents, especially children, said unfortunately some parents unnecessarily risk their children's safety.

The sheriff noted that statistics show that last year in New York State 357 children under 15 years of age were killed and some 40,000 injured in auto accidents. "This toll would have been significantly lower had all parents regularly secured their child with belts," Martin commented.

In commenting on a campaign supporting Learn and Live Safety Tips, the sheriff advised parents that a first precaution is keeping a child in the back seat, which he said is safer than the front in moderate accidents "unless you let the child stand on the seat."

Tiny infants should be carried in a deep crib anchored on the back seat or fixed securely against the back of the front seat, the sheriff said. A protective netting fastened over the top of the crib is advisable. "Do not carry an infant in your arms for it might be crushed between your body and anything you might strike in case of an accident," Martin said.

The sheriff's department has regular patrols on the highways in the county throughout the year in an effort to reduce or eliminate traffic accidents on the highway. He suggested that parents purchase harnesses and special seats for their small children. These should not merely "hang" over the back of the front seat, but they should be anchored to the car's structure with existing safety belts or specially installed connections, Martin advised.

Standard lap belts should be secured around youngsters over five years of age.

Commenting further on safety precautions, Martin said, "When your child is properly belted, buckle up yourself," the sheriff commented, noting that is a good example and a safer one.

Forum for Breeders Scheduled Tuesday

HURLEY

A breeders 'institute and forum has been scheduled for Tuesday, March 16 at 1 p.m. in Hurley Reformed Church Hall, Old Route 209.

Two featured speakers are scheduled including W. Clark Fleming, president and manager of Bayville Farms, Virginia Beach, Va., one of the largest free stall dairy operations in the East. He will discuss New Ideas on Breeding and Practical Management from Production to Merchandising.

Also, Professor William Merrill of the State College of Agriculture at Cornell, who will discuss feeding systems. Professor George Trimberger of the Animal Science Department at Cornell, will serve as moderator.

Information in regard to registration fees for the institute is available by calling Harold J. Hogan, cooperative extension agent at the Kingston office, 74 John Street. All dairymen are invited to attend, including students, 4-H members and families.

ENCORE! ENCORE! REPEAT! REPEAT!

THE SNOW CAME... THE CUSTOMERS DIDN'T!

All winter long we kept accumulating hundreds of bargains for a big special one-day sale as soon as the weather turned nice. We decided last Friday was "The Day". After all, Spring was almost here. Then WHAM-O the biggest storm of the winter! So the snow came and came, and came . . . and the customers couldn't . . . wouldn't . . . and didn't! About a dozen people phoned in to ask if we would run it again. We didn't need much urging, since we're jammed to the gills with virtually hundreds of "super" bargains which we want to sell out at once. So we're repeating this really "super" one-day sale this Friday (tomorrow). If you need furniture, bedding, floor coverings or anything for your home, FRIDAY is the "Big Day", AND STANDARD is the place to make it your most profitable day of the whole year. We guarantee it . . . YOU BE THE JUDGE! It's just a ONE DAY PRICE CHOPPING DEAL . . . this FRIDAY, 9 to 9, and we're not kidding. After FRIDAY, if by some chance there's anything left, (at these crazy prices) we take 'em off the floors and ship it to our warehouses outlet. Altho we have room to list only a few of the SPECTACULAR "BUYS" you can bet your rent money there's a store full of SURPRISES for you. So let's get started. We want to sell a few 4-Pc. BEDROOM Suites in Modern or Early American styling, and you can HAVE YOURS FOR $100. Of course, they're not the best in the world but well worth much more than a hundred bucks! And how about a 2-Pc. Living Room Suite for $100? We have a $100 deluxe recliner slightly damaged, leather-like vinyl for $10. Another Rocker-Recliner in glove-soft vinyl for ONLY $15. Are we talking bargains or not? Buy our best selling Sofabed Living Room Suite at $159 and we'll throw in a set of 3 tables and a pair of lamps giving you the whole 7-Pc. ROOMFULL for the same $159. Who needs a new Dinette? We got a batch of really lovely sets and you can take yours for $48. There's a real snazzy Mediterranean 5-Pc. dinette that our buyer said was a buy at $129 . . . then we sale priced it at $99.95 . . . now you can have it at $78. Maybe you can use a NEW RUG but you're not ready to shell out big money. Well, we have a few remnants cut from ends of broadloom at HALF PRICE! Beautiful 9 x 12 rugs in Nylons and Olefins that sold for $99.95, now yours for $49.88. When we want action, we go through the store and SLASH PRICES up and down, right and left regardless of original prices! If you don't think so, come in FRIDAY and if you don't agree, we'll give you a little GIFT FREE just for coming in. Fair enough? How about some end tables and cocktail tables? Rather than sell 'em at $12.95 each, we'll give you a set of 3 for only $20. Or maybe you want to "put on the ritz" and go for modern all-glass and chrome tables but the $59.95 price tag discourages you. Well, FRIDAY we have a few for you at $35 and they're genuine Mersman tables at that! Get cracking early FRIDAY and you'll be able to buy a 5-Pc. Salad and Chip-and-Dip Set for only ONE BUCK! Or how about $50 OFF on deluxe Motorola Stereophonic AM-FM Consoles? Or how about a 10-drawer chest-of-drawers in unfinished Ponderosa Pine at $25! Don't forget: this sale is not limited only to items on this page, come in for a STORE FULL of PRICE CHOPPING BARGAINS! For the newly married or you guys and dolls who "like to think young", we got a really groovy 3-Pc. corner LIVING ROOM grouping, consisting of 2 twin sofas with a corner table, in tweed and floral upholstery, for an even 100 BUCKS! Need a $69.95 Early American styled desk in Salem Maple finish? It's yours at HALF PRICE! Need an extra living room chair in colonial, modern, traditional or provincial styling? Take $149.95 value for $66. We tried to sell $149 Swivel Rockers for $100 to no avail, take yours at $75 . . . Need a Crib for the baby? Take any one in store at 30% off! How about lovely Boston Rockers at $20? How about a beautiful Sofa Sleeper with concealed innerspring mattress at $100 off? But back to the BEDROOM where you can "Pick up" a beautiful Salem Maple finish 8-Pc. Bunk Bed outfit for $99. If Spanish Mediterranean is your taste choose an elegant 4-Pc. Triple Dresser Suite for $250 (no, that's not an error . . . $250 for a Custom-Crafted Suite worth $500!) How about the KITCHEN you say? We have a deluxe 36" Hardwick range, yours for $100. AND MANY SURPRISE DISCOUNTS on Hotpoint Automatic Washers and Dryers (which we can't advertise.) Need a new Iron, Hair Dryer, Blender, etc., etc.? Come see some real bargains at Standard FRIDAY. As an EXTRA REWARD for reading this far we have a few Sure Fit Solid Color Slipcovers . . . take yours at HALF PRICE. And we simply got to mention elegant Platform Rockers at HALF PRICE if you're early. By the way! Need a nite stand from expensive bedroom suites (val. to $79.95) for $10? Want to swap some of your loot for a Stereo System with AM-FM Multiplex Radio? We have complete outfit with 2 speakers and Automatic Changers with built-in 8-Track Player for $169. There are virtually hundreds of OTHER SURPRISES for you in the store. So come in early. Sorry, no mail or phone orders — and all sales final. All items subject to prior sale. Limited Quantities. And remember: there's no charge for credit at Standard. No 12%-15%-18% heavy interest and carrying charges! For example: Buy merchandise for cash price of $100; or pay $10 down, leaving a deferred payment price of $90; pay only $10 monthly for 9 months. There is absolutely no finance charge and no annual percentage rate. And even at these prices, we'll deliver it to your home free. But that's not all: buy $99.95 or more and you get an 18 Transistor Radio worth $12.95 ABSOLUTELY FREE. That's right, a $12.95 Transistor Radio is our GIFT TO YOU because we'd love to have you as a Standard Customer!

HUSBAND AND WIFE VOLUNTEERS — Abram Chazan, and his wife, Fay (R) are Benedictine Hospital's first husband and wife team of volunteers. The West Hurley couple devote every Wednesday to working in the hospital, he in the patient area and she in the business office. Chazen is shown pouring a glass of water for Mrs. Minnie Bruce. Husband-Wife Hospital Volunteers

A New Recipe on Remaining Young

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

A new recipe for remaining young came this week from a retired West Hurley couple—Abram and Fay Chazan who are donating one full day a week as Benedictine Hospital's first husband and wife team of volunteers.

Grateful for having been blessed with a satisfying and abundant life, the Chazans decided to do something "worthwhile and humane" for their fellow man.

Abram, whose childhood in Russia meant oppression, communism, hunger and war said he lived his early years with the idea of suffering. "Since then God has been very good to me," he said, "and now I would like to do something to help alleviate other people's suffering if I can."

Just how he does it takes many directions, according to Mrs. Betty Valeo, director of Benedictine's volunteers. Chazan, whose love of people is immediately recognizable, spends quite a bit of his time at the hospital talking with patients who want to talk, listening to those who want to be listened to. In between, he makes beds, feeds patients, runs errands between the hospital pharmacy and the Spellman Wing where he works and does any other chores that need doing . . . all with a smile.

His wife, Fay, who prefers non-patient work, busies herself in the hospital's business office where she is most adept in filing and doing other forms of paper work of which there is always a large volume.

A former production manager who dealt in research and development, Chazan said that he often finds patients, "amazed that he is doing something for nothing."

"I tell them to come back and do a little something when they are well," he said, adding that he is encouraging anyone and everyone to consider doing some volunteer work themselves.

"They will find as I do when one views others' suffering, all of one's own problems seem to shrink."

Admittedly having planned for his retirement, Chazan, a master of four languages and a craftsman who paints, sculptures and makes classical guitars, Chazan urges others to do something besides "twiddling their thumbs in front of a TV set."

Urging that people stay out of ruts, avoid becoming stale and do something with their lives, he prescribes "come to Benedictine and spend a wonderful day working with people."

Chazan's and his wife's enthusiasm for giving something of themselves as volunteers is beginning to attract attention, according to Mrs. Valeo, who said she has had some inquires from men who expressed interest in similar work. Recently the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary extended an invitation to the Chazans to join their organization.

At present the hospital enjoys the services of more than 200 volunteers who put in thousands of hours a year in a variety of capacities. Anyone interested in furthering the work of Benedictine may call Mrs. Valeo at the hospital.

Memorial Institute Slated at Benedictine

KINGSTON

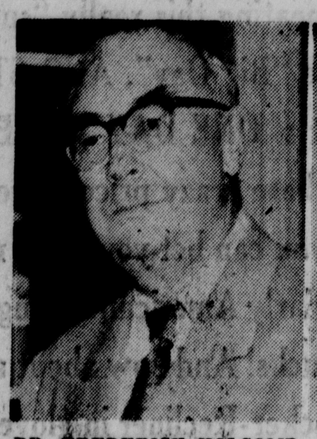

The Katherine M. Murphy Memorial Institute, a one-day professional education session, has been established by the Ulster County TB and RD Foundation, co-sponsored by the Catskill Region TB and RD Association, and will be held April 1 at the Benedictine Hospital Auditorium with State Health Commissioner Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham as its keynote speaker. Geared to the totally new "third major phase" in the fight to conquer Tuberculosis, the program will be the first of its kind to be presented in New York State. Attendance will be composed of physicians, hospital administrators and key hospital nursing personnel; also instructional nursing personnel, public health nursing, laboratory and legislature representatives.

Announcement of this special professional Institute was made by Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Sr., Kingston, Institute program chairman, and Miss Katharine T. Terwilliger, Ellenville, chairman of arrangements, and president of the Foundation. They reported that the program title New Trends in Tuberculosis Treatment in Change from TB Hospitals to General Hospitals represents the "third major phase" in TB work, which as a result of chemotherapy, places focus on short-term care for TB patients in the local general hospital, followed by greater emphasis on outpatient, clinic care.

"We are particularly proud in presenting this new and outstanding Tuberculosis treatment session, that it will be in memory of Miss Murphy, who as one of our pioneer long-time Tuberculosis workers in Ulster County, helped directly in the supportive effort of phases one and two of TB work which have led to the present new phase three. Miss Murphy served effectively and selflessly also as Executive Director of the former Ulster County TB and Health Association (now in the Catskill Region Group)," they noted, "and later was an honorary life member of its Board until her death."

The first two phases leading to the present new program approach first involved sanitorium treatment followed, late in the 1950s, by the emergence of effective drugs which have eliminated TBs infectiousness and have shortened the hospital stay of the TB patient.

Dr. Holcomb and Miss Terwilliger expressed their appreciation to the several key professional people who have aided in the establishment and development of the Institute, including. Evald Bors-Koefoed, Director, Ellenville Community Hospital; Dr. James R. Clarkin, Chief of Medical Staff, Benedictine Hospital; Dr. Herbert Derman, Director, Kingston City Laboratory; Miss Rose Marie Feeney, R.N., Medical Worker, Ulster County Dept. of Social Services; Miss Mary L. Finger, Assistant Administrator, Kingston Hospital; Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb, Sr., Kingston; Dr. John A. Olivet, Medical Director, Benedictine Hospital; Dr. John B. Plass, Director, Ulster County Chest Clinic; Mrs. Ednah S. Riley, Executive Director, former Greene County Health Association; John M. Robbins, President, Catskill Region TB and RD Association, Inc.; Dr. Herbert F. Schwartz, Former Director, Ulster County TB Hospital; Dr. Edward M. F. Shea, Executive Committee, Catskill Region TB and RD Association, Inc.; Sister Mary Charles, O.S.B., Administrator, Benedictine Hospital; Miss Katharine T. Terwilliger, President, Ulster County TB and RD Foundation, Inc.; Dr. Barbara Vosburgh, Secretary, Medical Society of Greene County; and E. Robert Johnson, Executive Director, Catskill Region TB and RD Association, Inc.

Benefit Set At Auditorium

KINGSTON

A country and western jamboree will be held March 21 at the Kingston Auditorium to raise funds for the Ithaca Speech Clinic. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Charles Emery of Kingston. The event will begin at 1 p.m.

The Ithaca Speech Clinic, in existence for the past 31 years, has offered intensive therapy for a number of children from this area. State aid was denied the clinic this year and, as a result, summer activities may have to be curtailed.

Bravo, Brava and Bravi for The Romeros

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Who that comes this way anymore can still fill every seat in the cavernous Community Theatre and so impress such a crowd that it is soon shouting bravo, brava and bravi?

The Romeros, for one — or for four, actually — for this quartet is in a class by itself. Total Showmanship is the gift the Romeros bring to any stage, and it emanates from the simple trappings of four men with four guitars seated on four folding chairs against a plain curtain backdrop.

Centerpiece for their performance at the Community Theatre here in Kingston Tuesday night was Celedonio Romero, whose high-voltage, precision playing sets the pace for his three sons Celin, Pepe and Angel. Together the four add up to a rewarding musical experience.

With brilliant inventiveness and dramatically flying fingers, the Romeros fashion a performance of extraordinary skill, obviously prepared and presented with flair and devotion. One can only hope that the Community Concert Association which brought them here will sponsor a return engagement in another season.

Combines Many Elements

The music of the Romeros combines elements that are soothing, relaxing and as mesmerizing as a balmy Iberian breeze, and some that race rapidly with furious precision. To the music of Antonio Vivaldi, they bring a soft and gentle touch — the lyrical strumming of four troubadours in concert. Briskly fragile is Pepe Romero's rendering of Girolamo Frescobaldi's "La Frescobalda." And whether Angel Romero reaches back into the musical archives of 1546 for a piece, or jousts competitively with his brother Pepe in a tournament between two guitars, he proves himself an individual talent (as do all the Romeros) as well as an inspired ensemble player, as do each of the four.

With extraordinary finesse this quartet of Spanish classical guitarists move from the dignified, disciplined delicacy called for in allegro and prelude numbers to the wild intensity of rapidly flying fingers required in fast-paced fandangos and flamencos.

Celedonio Romero and his sons compose an ensemble with a highly personal and expressive style. Beneath the racing tempo of their music is an undercurrent of romantic precision — at times recalling to mind a sunny scene of sombreros flying in the wind and, at other times, lulling a listener into a relaxed tingle beneath a blanket of soaring but deeply poignant lyricism.

Their performance here was marked by electrifying artistry, and the Community Concert season glistened again Tuesday night because of them. Impressive guitar virtuosos one and all, the Romeros delighted their audience, projecting their 16th century-and-beyond music with such ultimate effectiveness it seemed totally relevant to these times.

To the Community Concert Association, then, a round of applause for its efforts in assuring that music continued to be a thriving art and a booming business, locally during the season just closing. Excellent instrumentalists and singers have appeared here this year under the Association's sponsorship, and interest in these offerings ran at an all-time high.

Growth of musical interest, it has always seemed to us, should be greatest at the grass roots. Community Concerts is successfully accomplishing this goal by presenting extraordinary performances by indisputable talents. One can only look forward to next season and hope that one has foresight enough to reserve series tickets before another sell-out prohibits the enjoyment of superlative musical entertainment in all fields.

Low in Calories

The lowly onion is a key to mouth-watering, budget-stretching meals. In addition to adding zest to many otherwise drab dishes, it is a source of certain essential minerals and is low in calories. Stores throughout the State are presently well stocked with onions since this year's crop is about one-fourth larger than last year's.

'Forty Carats' Is All in Fun

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

As it rollicked its wal across stage at Kingston's Community Theatre Wednesday night, "Forty Carats" came over as a bright little comedy. It is a comedy, however, based on a one-joke affair about a 40-year-old divorcee in love with a boy young enough to be her son.

Credit Charles Maryann's crisp direction for sustaining the single joke, along with author Jay Allen's pleasant humor. And credit, too, a top-drawer cast of pros led by the delightful Barbara Britton.

"Carats" is very much a woman's show—larded with a woman's humor— which explains why theatre party ladies kept it running for almost two years on Broadway, drawing capacity audiences month after month. As a stage vehicle, it's of the genre that could run seven matinees every week and still fill the house at each performance with housewives of any age.

Early on "Carats" throws two strangers together in a tavern setting. Barbara Britton, a smart and well-off business woman of 40, has a broken down auto on a Greek island, and meets a 22-year-old glamor boy (convincingly played by Robert Dannenberg) in a tavern that specializes in ouzo.

Back to Manhattan

Shortly thereafter the action shifts to Manhattan and moves along with natural, human humor, avoiding the gags and farce that so often accompany a comedy of the type.

There's some emphasis on the "generation gap," but not enough to upset anyone. No unwashed hippies and no drugs intrude on the plot. Film-stage-and-TV performer Miss Britton displays superb technique as a woman of 40 who has discarded two husbands and is won by a lad with lots of cheek. That's certainly generation gap emerging victorious, as is another instance, Miss Britton's 17-year-old, mod daughter (Tracy Brooks Swope does this role with flair) woos and wins a comfortable and unimaginative widower of 45.

Fine supporting performances are contributed by Nancy Cushman as Miss Britton's socially-established but socially ambitious mother, and Robert Darnell as the genial ex-husband, friend and advisor of the heroine.

Miss Britton is so convincing, natural and effortless in her role that it could not conceivably occur to anyone that her age might be a barrier to a love affair with any man her junior. The other actors in the plot are equally convincing—for director Maryan has persuaded them to play their roles straight from the hip. Dannenberg is so forthright as the smitten youth that he emerges as not so much smitten as a youngster who knows who and what he is and where he wants to go. Darnell is totally ingratiating as the former husband, and Miss Cushman is fine as the confused mother.

Stylish Sets

The Kingston roadshow production, brought here by producer Robert Hadley of American Theatre League, Inc. boasted stylish sets and costumes right out of the most modern boutiques and men's furnishing stores.

"Forty Carats" is that rarity—a play that poses no problems and steers clear of gritty realism. It's all in fun—and just in fun—which makes it an "easy-to-take" comedy. The audience at the Community laughed all evening long—obviously pleased to be persuaded that age makes no difference. And just as obviously delighted that here was a show that could make them forget their daily routines for a few short hours.

"Forty Carats" was a good time romp and, most assuredly has paved the way for producer Hadley to bring on two more eagerly anticipated theatre events here this season. The success of this frothy presentation should start a box office run for tickets to the Theatre League's upcoming presentations of "Plaza Suite" on April 12 and "Zorba" on May 17 at the Community.

THAT'S BARBARA BRITTON on the phone and Nancy Cushman, as her mother, in the Broadway comedy hit, "FORTY CARATS." The breezy, beguiling, fun shop came to Kingston's Community Theatre Wednesday night through the auspices of an American Theatre League roadshow production.

"...Leave it to you,' you said. 'You'll find us a hotel with old-fashioned charm,' you said. 'Someplace we'll remember all our lives,' you said ..."

Guest Caller to Star at Lefooter Dance

PAUL PRATT

Paul Pratt will be guest caller for the Lefooters Western Style Square Dance Club on Friday at 8:30 p.m. at Hurley Reformed Church Hall, off Route 209.

Pratt's square dance calling began as a hobby which brought about the formation of several square dance clubs in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Approximately 10 years ago, he made the transition of turning hobby to avocation by becoming a full time square dance caller.

During the last eight years, he has taught an average of five workshop classes per year, been club caller for three clubs, and guest caller for many clubs throughout New England. He is also active in all the New England Caller Associations, and appears at many conventions and other events, such as exhibitions on television, at the New York World's Fair, and on a tape for Italian television, Rome, Italy.

All club level dancers are invited.

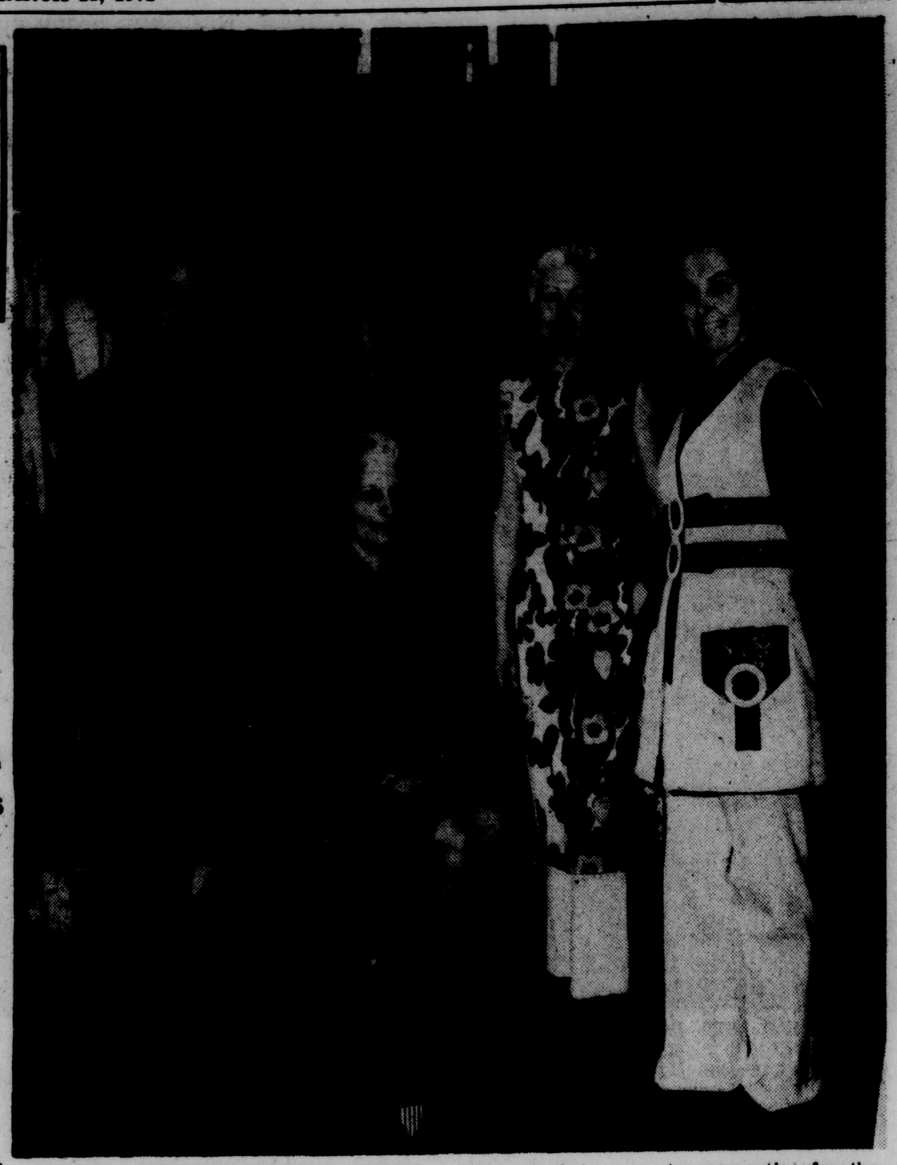

Sorosis Sponsors KHS Art Contest

Mrs. Henry Eighmey, president, and Mrs. Clifford Henze, arts and crafts Committee Chairman of Sorosis Club of Kingston have announced an Art Contest which Sorosis is sponsoring of the paintings of Senior Students of the Kingston High School Art Department with the co-operation of their instructor, Mrs. Richard Steigbert.

The entries of the Kingston High School students will be on display at the Bonanza Branch of the Kingston Savings Bank on Route 9W for a week beginning Friday, March 19th. Judging will be done at 2 p.m. on Friday, March 19. The judges, chosen by Sorosis, are asked to consider particularly the artistic promise of the entry. First, second and third prizes will be awarded.

Sorosis is a member of the N.Y. State Federation of Women's Clubs which has, as one project, a state-wide art competition. The winner of the Kingston Contest will be sent to one on the Federation's District level. The winner of that contest will compete with the winners of the 9 Federation Districts for the state award.

In previous competitions, Kingston High School artists have rated exceedingly well and have won recognition on all levels. Last year the entry of Calvin Saunders won the top state prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund DeGasperis of 120 Harding Avenue, Kingston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sondra Marie of Boston, Mass., to David H. Rourke, son of Mrs. James Rourke of 7 Nelson Road, Burlington, Mass. and the late James Rourke.

Miss De Gasperis, a graduate of St. Ursula Academy and College of Mt. St. Vincent in Riverdale, is employed as auditor in Home Savings Bank, Boston, Mass.

Her fiance, an alumnus of Arlington High School and Executive Flyers Academy, Hanscom Field, Mass., served two years in the U.S. Air Force. He holds a commercial pilot's license and is employed by McDonald Realty Inc. in Stoneham, Mass.

A fall wedding is being planned.

New Horizons Offered for Eager Travelers

New horizons will be offered Monday and Tuesday, March 15 and 16, to applicants who possess stenographic and typing skills and have a yen to travel to start a career with Air Force Headquarters in the Arlington, Va. and Washington, D.C. areas.

The posts are open to those with or without experience and to seniors in colleges and high schools for placement after graduation. Starting salaries range from $94 to $133 weekly with excellent promotion opportunities.

Miss Bonnie Alwick, Merrick, and currently employed as an executive secretary at Air Force Headquarters will accompany Miss Berner Bonifant, employment representative from the Pentagon, on visits to colleges and schools in search for persons with these talents. The representatives will give first-hand information about job openings, working and living in the Washington, D.C. area. When not at educational institutions, they will interview applicants at the N.Y. State Employment Service, 194 Washington Avenue, Albany, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Appointments for interviews to be conducted after 2 p.m. can be arranged.

As a secretary or typist, personnel assist high ranking military and civilian officers in planning activities that involve Air Force functions world-wide, even outer space. Assignments can be in the fields of personnel, executive administration, congressional and foreign liaison, medicine, law, aerospace programs and other varied fields which can be stepping-stones to overseas positions.

Housing is arranged for selectees, prior to arrival. Assistance is given after arrival to locate permanent accommodations in Virginia, within 20-25 minutes ride to work. Friends can begin work together. Arrangements can be made for those who apply alone to meet others and travel with a companion.

New World Music Featured Tonight At Mt. St. Mary's

The New World Chamber Ensemble will present the third in a series of "Four Evenings of Music" at 7:30 p.m., tonight in the Mount Saint Mary College Theatre, Newburgh. The performance is open to the public free of charge.

The group, composed of Audrey Leonard Borschel, soprano, Michael Borschel, clarinet, James Horton, viola, and Sharon Hiller Rhoten, piano, will offer a program of music from Austria and Germany including works by Bach, Schumann, Mahler, Strauss, Hindemith and Uhl.

The final performance in the series will be on May 6 in the Mount Saint Mary College Theatre. The concerts are made possible under the Cooperative Music Program through the New York State Council on the Arts' grant to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society and the Associated Colleges of the Mid-Hudson Area.

Program Announced by Christian Women

MARCH FOOD NEWS

On the USDA plentiful foods list for March are peanuts and peanut products, pork, oranges, orange juice, prunes, grapefruit, potatoes, and canned peaches. The freeze in the citrus growing areas will reduce the orange and grapefruit supply somewhat but not enough to create a scarcity, says Louise K. Breitung, Extension Home Economist. Why not include these foods in your menu with these recipes.

GLAZED PARTY HAM LOAF

Three-fourths cup crushed dry cereal or bread crumbs
One-fourth cup brown sugar, firmly packed
Three-fourths cup milk
Two eggs
One-fourth cup finely chopped onion
One teaspoon dry mustard
One-eighth teaspoon black pepper
One pound ground cooked ham
One pound ground cooked pork
One ten-ounce jar apple jelly
One-fourth cup light corn syrup
Three tablespoons lemon juice.
One-half teaspoon dry mustard

Combine cereal (or crumbs), brown sugar, milk, eggs, onion, one teaspoon dry mustard and pepper in large mixing bowl and beat well. Mix in meats. Shape into loaf on greased baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. about one and one-fourth hours or until well browned.

Combine apple jelly, corn syrup, lemon juice, and one-half teaspoon dry mustard in saucepan and mix well. Stir over low heat just until jelly is melted. Brush loaf with glaze several times during last 15 minutes of baking. Serve with remaining glaze. Makes eight to ten servings.

IRISH SOD ABREAD

Two cups sifted all purpose flour
Three-fourths teaspoon baking soda
One-half teaspoon salt
One tablespoon sugar
Six tablespoons cold shortening.
One-half to one cup raisins
One tablespoon caraway seeds
One-half to two-thirds cup buttermilk

Sift dry ingredients into large bowl. Cut the cold shortening into the flour mixture with a pastry blender until the mixture resembles corn meal. Stir in raisins and caraway seeds and add buttermilk gradually, to make a moist mixture. Knead briefly. Shape into a round or oblong loaf and place in greased bread pan. Cut a deep cross in the top and down the sides to prevent cracking. Brush the top with milk. Bake for forty to fifty minutes at 375 degrees F. Good on March 17th — or any other day.

* * *

Take advantage of plentiful peanuts. Use chopped peanuts as a topping for vegetables-broccoli, cauliflower, green beans, or carrots.

* * *

Mix sections of fresh grapefruit, and fresh oranges and top each serving with a teaspoon of cranberry sauce. This makes and easy dessert that goes well with pork and ham.

Gala Purim Ball Slated Saturday

A gala Purim masquerade ball sponsored by the Kingston Community Council will be held Saturday 9 to 1 at Ahavath Israel Synagogue, 100 Lucas Avenue.

Queen Esther will be selected and awards will be given for best costumes. Planners advise that costumes are recommended but dress is optional.

Judges for the Queen Esther contest will be Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo; Dorothy Narel, Freeman Woman's Page Editor; Ward Todd of station WKNY and Anthony Triulzi, director of Kingston Hospital.

Dancing will be to the music of the Papa Bears. Refreshments will be served.

Reservations may be made by calling the Jewish Community Center office at 96 Maiden Lane.

Soloist Is Naemd For HVP Concerts March 12 thru 15

Pianist Robert Guralnik will appear as soloist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic under the direction of Claude Monteux on March 12, 13, 14 and 15. The Friday concert will be an open dress rehearsal at Orange County Community College at 8 p.m. This rehearsal, which is free, is funded by the New York State Council on the Arts through the Philharmonic's cooperative music program with area colleges.

The three concert performances will take place at the Newburgh Free Academy on March 13, the Poughkeepsie High School on March 14 and the Kingston Community Theatre on March 15. These three concerts begin at 8:30 p.m.

The New York Times described Guralnik's Carnegie Hall concert enthusiastically: "his playing had grace, fluidity and a bubbling joy that were quite transfixing." The newspaper of Portland, Oregon said of his recent concert," Guralnik is a remarkable pianist. He is a strong player but the force he applies to the keys is never harsh. He is thus able to furnish dynamic contrasts not available to less sensitive fingers."

Guralnik is familiar to area audiences. He has performed as soloist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic in two other concerts. He has also appeared as guest soloist with orchestras and in numerous recitals throughout the United States and Europe. His recordings of contemporary piano literature are frequently presented on radio broadcasts, both in the New York area and the west coast.

A resident of the Hudson Valley, Guralnik is chairman of the piano department at the Community Music School in Spring Valley. He is also a faculty member at Briarcliff College, and maintainis his own private studio in Mountainville.

The program is BEETHOVEN: Concerto No. 5, "The Emperor", DEBUSSY: Two Nocturnes, Nuages and Fetes and SCHULLER: Seven Studies on Themes of Paul Klee.

Red Hook Jayncees Aid Astor Home, Ferncliff as Part of Service Projects

Several upcoming projects were discussed at the regular monthly meeting of Red Hook Jayncees held at the home of Mrs. Jon Anders in Rhinebeck.

Members plan to lend assistance to the Astor Home in Rhinebeck by taking the children in small groups on shopping trips and holding afternoon story time programs.

The Ferncliff Nursing Home will be another project for the Jayncees. Members will read to the residents and help the elderly with their letter writing.

The next meeting will take place Tuesday, March 23 at the home economics room in Red Hook High School at 8 p.m. Any Jaycee wife interested in attending should contact Mrs. Stanley Pruzan, Rhinebeck.

Popular Onions

A glance through any cookbook will reveal few recipes, except for desserts, which do not call for onion. One 19th century epicure declared, "Without it there would be no gastronomic art. Banish it from the kitchen and all pleasure of eating flies with it. Its presence lends color and enchantment to the most modest dish; its absence reduces the rarest dainty to hopeless insipidity and the diner to despair."

St. Patrick's Dance

American Legion Post 1512 of Stone Ridge has completed plans for the annual St. Patrick's dance Saturday, March 20.

George Shea, chairman, said that plans call for an evening of fun for everyone. Tom Filocco and his Music-makers will furnish music for dancing from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. with many Irish numbers featured.

Refreshments and awards are included for a small donation at the door. The public is cordially invited to attend Shea said.

Royal Treatment For the Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati gave the New York Knicks the royal treatment to stay on the Hawks' tail.

The Royals blew a 17-point third period lead, then woke up to whip the Knicks 120-118 in overtime Wednesday night and remain within reach of Atlanta in the battle for the runner-up playoff berth in the National Basketball Association's Central Division.

The second-place Hawks trampled Phoenix 139-98 in the only other NBA game. In the night's two American Basketball Association contests, Indiana overhauled Memphis 122-113 and the Floridians squeezed by Denver 116-113.

Nate Archibald was the Royals' saviour, erupting for seven of his 14 points in the overtime period after the Knicks knotted the count 104-140 with two seconds to play in regulation time on Willis Reed's basket.

Tom van Arsdale of Cincinnati topped all scorers with 31 points, followed by Sam Lacey's 28. Dave DeBusschere had 29 and Reed and Dick Barnett added 27 apiece for New York.

Atlanta Coach Richie Guerin was ectatic about the performance of rookie Pete Maravich, who hit 13 of 22 field goal attempts and 11 of 13 from the foul line for 37 points, and added nine assists in the 35 minutes he played.

With just six games to play—one less than Cincinnati—the Hawks have a 2½-game edge. But the Royals have an edge of their own. They've beaten them in all three meetings this season with one more coming—Saturday in Cincinnati.

Phoenix grabbed a quick 11-4 lead against Atlanta, then failed to score a point while the Hawks got 14 of them. By the half the Hawks were on top 75-51 and they lengthened it to 40 points in the final period.

Dick Van Arsdale had 19 for the sinking Suns, two games behind second-place Chicago in the Midwest Division.

The Indiana Pacers crept within 1½ games of first-place Utah in the ABA West as they stormed back from an 18-point deficit in the second period. They finally tied Memphis midway in the third quarter and, after a seesaw struggle, went ahead to stay in the closing seconds of the period.

Indiana's Bob Netolicky had 32 and Mel Daniels added 29 while Steve Jones was the Pros' top man with 25.

A couple of former Denver Rockets combined to haunt their former teammates in the Floridians' triumph. With the score knotted 111-111, Lonnie Wright canned a three-point basket. Then, after Denver cut the gap to a single point, Larry Jones sealed the victory with two free throws. Wright finished with 26 points to top the winners. Denver's Larry Cannon had 35.

Bruins Smash More Records

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

The Boston Bruins soon may ask for recognition as a record company.

Phil Esposito tied one National Hockey League record and Bobby Orr set another Wednesday night as the Bruins, leaving a trail of records in their wake this season, smashed the California Golden Seals 8-1.

Esposito, the 29-year-old center who holds the league mark for most points in a season, tied Bobby Hull's single season goal record when he collected his 58th in the second period. Esposito stole the puck from Billy Hicke behind the Seals' net, skated in front and slammed backhander past Gary Smith.

Esposito has registered 58 goals in 66 games while Hull took a full 76 games to set his mark in the 1968-69 season.

Orr drove home his 33rd and 34th goals of the season to break his own record of goals for a defensemen. He scored the only goal of the first period and broke his record 56 seconds into the second on an assist from Ed Westfall.

In other NHL action Wednesday night, New York stopped Chicago 4-2, Minnesota blanked St. Louis 4-0, Pittsburgh tied Philadelphia 2-2, and Toronto edged Montreal 2-1.

Esposito narrowly missed breaking the record in the final period. With his teammates feeding him throughout the third period, Esposito hit the post with one shot and blew another opportunity when he faked relief goalie Chris Worthy to the ice but shot into Worthy's pads.

The Bruins kept Esposito on the ice for the last three minutes of the game without relief in an attempt to break the record.

Orr also contributed an assist, his 85th of the season and only two short of his own NHL mark. The Bruins' defenseman now has 119 points.

Don Awrey, Johnny Bucyk, Mike Walton, Wayne Carleton and John McKenzie also added goals for the Bruins.

Dennis Hextall scored California's lone goal on a breakaway early in the second period tying the score at 1-1 before Boston erupted for seven straight goals.

Rod Gilbert and Bob Nevin scored third period goals as the Rangers kept Chicago from clinching the Western Division championship.

With the score tied at 2-2, Gilbert beat Tony Esposito at 10.03 of the final period and Nevin added his insurance goal less than five minutes later.

The victory gave Ranger goaltenders Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure a nine-goal edge over Chicago's goalies in the race for the Vezina Trophy, presented annually to the NHL's best goalkeepers.

Moose All Stars Top Port Ewen

KINGSTON

Moose All Stars took a 12-4 quarter lead and went on to trounce Port Ewen Presentation, 47-33, for their fourth straight win. The Stars are prepping for the New York State Moose championships in Kingston, March 19-20-21.

Cliff Lyons led the Moose with 14 points and Rick Meiers potted 12. Ted Barton and Ed Van Loan each hit 11 for Presentation, this season's CYO Jayvee champions.

The score:

Moose Stars (47)—McWeeney 4, Perry 4, Lyons 14, Meiers 12, Burris 8, Albany, Jordan 5, Dickerson.

Presentation (33)—Barton 11, Van Loan 11, Lucas 2, Farrell 5, Modeen 2, DeMartino, Lockland, Provenzano 2.

Archdiocesan Playoffs Here

KINGSTON

Five St. Mary's of Kingston teams will compete in four of the six divisions of CYO Archdiocesan Basketball Championships Saturday at the municipal auditorium.

St. Mary's will be represented in the Tyro, Small Fry, High School and Senior divisions. St. Joseph's of Kingston, Presentation of Port Ewen round out the field.

All division winners play the following Saturday, March 20, for the Upstate Championships at Haverstraw.

The pairings by division:

Small Fry — 10 a.m. — St. Mary's (Kingston) vs. St. Mary's (Fishkill).

Tyro — 11 a.m. — St. Mary's (Kingston) vs. St. John's (Mahopac).

Jayvees—12—Port Ewen Presentation vs. St. Mary's (Poughkeepsie).

Varsity—1 p.m.—St. Joseph's (Kingston) vs. St. Mary's (Poughkeepsie).

High School — 2 p.m. — St. Mary's (Kingston) vs. Dutchess County Champions.

Senior — 3 p.m. — St. Mary's (Kingston) vs. St. Martin's (Poughkeepsie).

St. Joseph's Girls of Kingston play the Dutchess champions in the Elementary division Friday at 7:30 at St. Mary's gym.

Trout Meeting

The Catskill Mountain Chapter of Trout Unlimited will meet Friday at 8 p.m. at the Bonanza Branch of the Kingston Savings Bank on Route 9W, north. The same program will be presented as was planned for the canceled meeting March 4.

McCune Is Pin Leader

NEW YORK (UPI)—Don McCune, a Munster, Ind., bowler who hasn't won a championship since last summer, held a slim one-pin lead at the start of today's third round play in the $85,000 Cougar Open Bowling Tournament.

McCune, who won the Houston Open last summer, averaged 225 pins per game after starting the day with a six-game block of 1,358 and coming back with a 1,343 for a total pinfall of 2,701.

Nelson Burton, Jr., of St. Louis, the reigning bowler of the year, finished at 2,700 and Bob Strampe of Detroit was third at 2,675. Carmen Salvino of Chicago (2,672) and Johnny Petraglia of Brooklyn, N.Y., (2,668) completed the top five.

Vince Pantuso of Parsippany, N.J. was sixth followed by Mike Limongello (North Babylon, N.Y.) and Curt Schmidt (Fort Wayne, Ind.).

Six more qualifying games will be rolled this morning before the field is cut in half. The remaining 88 bowlers roll another six-game block tonight to determine the 16 semi-finalists who start match game play friday.

Jeff-Fallsburg In Tourney Finals

LIBERTY

Either Jefferson-Youngsville or Fallsburg will be crowned champion of high school basketball Section Nine Tournament III but don't try to convince fans of Tuxedo and Delaware Valley that the right team finished first.

The stage was set for Saturday's final at New Paltz State when Jeff scored 10 out of the last 12 points to edge Tuxedo, 58-57, and Fallsburg held on to defeat Delaware Valley, 64-63.

A rarely touted center, Fred Liebe of Jeff, put in eight consecutive points to spearhead his team's drive to the tournament finale. Liebe was to connect for 18 points on the night.

Tuxedo had taken a 28-24 halftime lead against Jeff, best defensive team in the area. The winners cut that margin by one point in the third quarter before pouring on the late game heroics to gain victory.

Randy Roetzel of Jeff led all scorers with 21 points.

Fallsburg ended Delaware's 10-game winning streak despite the absence of center Nate Patton, who was injured.

The game was close throughout with the big buckets coming midway through the last quarter giving the Comets a 56-52 lead.

Carl Gilmore had 21 points for Fallsburg.

REBOUNDS: The field is now complete for the finals in all classes. Jeff meets Fallsburg at 1 p.m. Saturday followed by Highland Falls against Nanuet in Tournament II action at New Paltz State. Unbeaten New-burgh will be tested by Clarkstown in the Tournament I contest at 7 p.m. No tickets are available for the night game.

Marie Proell Wins Ski Cup

VIENNA (UPI)—They plan to roast an ox to honor Anne Marie Proell who clinched the women's world cup ski title Wednesday in Italy.

"We shall roast an ox on the village square when she comes home," the burgomaster of her hamlet of 502 inhabitants said on learning of Miss Proell's success.

In Abetone, where she clinched her victory, Anne Marie smiled broadly and told newsmen: "I plan to get a driver's license as soon as I reach my 18th birthday. I also want to open a hotel in my home village of Kleinarl (Salzburg), get married and have five children."

Thus spoke a 17-year-old, who'll be 18 on March 27, who brought smiles back to the faces of Austrian ski officials and manufacturers, who had seen the male team suffer a succession of defeats by the French, Swiss and the odd American on the circuit.

Things were so bad at Christmas a special meeting had to be called between interested parties and at one time national coach Franz Hoppichler threatened to resign.

Miss Proell's success, however, has taken a lot of the bitterness away. Coach Hermannn Gamon attributed her victory to "strong nerves," while he exclaimed "we're back on the map."

Miss Proeel held off a determined season-long challenge by the French and finished with a record 195 points to win from defending champion Michele Jacot.

Nancy Green of Canada, who won in 1968 with a high of 191, was the previous point record holder. Miss Proell has further events at Abetone and at Aare, Sweden, next Sunday, but these are of academic interest only. Now she is champion, the second success by an Austrian --Gertrud Gabl won in 1969.

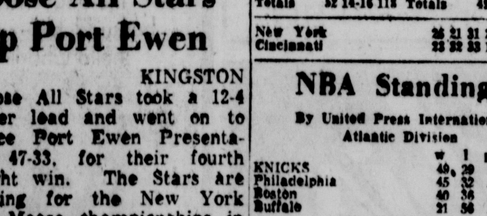

Miss Proell won two downhills, two slaloms and one giant slalom. A cool nerve and superb physical condition were her strong points.

Anne Marie's parents own a small ski lodge. She is one of eight children—five 10 and 14 are described as "extremely talented" by ski o[illegible]ials.

Robinson and O'Hara—Two of the Greatest

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON

When Fred Robinson and Mike O'Hara leave the swimming pool after a practice or a meet they go their separate ways.

It's not that the two Kingston High School standouts are unfriendly, just that they have different outside interests.

But when the duo is in the water they have plenty in common and now that the only thing left in their high school careers is the New York State intersectional meet the time has come for a review of the past and what it shows is staggering.

The value judgment comes first: Robinson and O'Hara (or O'Hara and Robinson for that matter) are probably the two best swimmers in the history of the varsity sport at Kingston High School.

"I would also say that they are two of the greatest swimmers in Section Nine history," says their coach Ron Gabriele.

Now for the facts:

O'Hara wore Kingston trunks from his freshman year to the present, scoring 300 points during that time and coming in first in 48 races. He capped his frosh year with a third place in the 100 yard backstroke against Newburgh and the point he gained was pivotal as Kingston went on to win its first DUSO championship. He has now been on all three league title-holding squads.

Mike, a 6-1, 155 pounder, holds numerous team records including three set this season (not to mention the five pool marks he broke) and not least among them are the 27 firsts he earned in 1970-71.

During this, his last campaign of dual meet racing, O'Hara was undefeated in the 200 yard individual medley and the 100 yard backstroke. His only loss was in an "off-event," the 100 yard backstroke, when he was called into service because of an injury to the regular in that category.

He racked up 142 points this season, a figure that would have been a new KHS record besting the 102 he created last year, had Robinson not scored 152 this time around.

His 1:00.3 for the 100 yard backstroke in Saturday's Section Nine meet won by Kingston made him a repeating champion. And his 2:15.1 in the 200 yard individual medley, though only good enough for the runner-up slot, still was the best time he'd ever clocked in the event.

Now he'll be a second timer at the State meet, to be held Friday and Saturday in Rochester, and just could add more to his impressive figures.

Oh yes, Mike has been accepted to the Norwich Military Academy in Connecticut but he won't tell them OK until he's heard from that other Military Academy at West Point where he is being considered for an appointment.

O'Hara also ran cross-country at KHS, and works on the school's Key Club, as well as with DeMolay, an organization which promotes good citizenship.

But don't forget Robinson.

He was on the Maroon swim team for three years. During that span he totaled 273 points, 43 firsts, and performed on two DUSO championship squads.

A muscular 5-9, 145 lbs., Robinson set five Kingston records and six pool marks this season including the most points for one year: 152.

He was undefeated in the 200 and 400 yard freestyle event. He was the Section Nine runner-up in both categories last years and became No. 1 in '71 with record breaking performances in the 100 and 200 free.

In that 200, Fred qualified for the finals with a 1:57.8 in the morning trials to set a Section record. In the afternoon he broke it with a 1:56.2. The old mark, incidentally, was held by Jack Ryan Jr., son of the Army coach.

As if the 200 wasn't enough, Robinson went out and re-wrote the 100 book with a 51.5, and he did it twice, in the prelims and again in the finals. Not only was it a new Sectional low, it was a school record, and, most amazingly a new standard for the Elting Gym pool at New Paltz which is the scene of many college meets. The former mark was 51.8 by a swimmer from Bloomsburgh State.

Had enough?

"They were an inspiration to me as a coach as well as to their teammates," Gabriele points out. "Both were hard workers throughout their careers and were natural leaders, always firing up the other kids in practice or at meets."

"Above everything," he goes on, "they've got desire."

The Kingston coach will be telling the story about the bus ride home after the Section win for a long time.

"It was noisy and everyone was excited naturally, but it eventually quieted down for a minute and Mike, who was sitting up front, turned around and said, 'Wasn't it all worth it?' "

Gamecocks Seek Redemption

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Starting today the South Carolina Gamecocks get the opportunity to redeem themselves for what happened a year ago.

The Gamecocks were picked as the country's No. 1 team in the 1970 pre-season Associated Press college basketball poll, but they didn't even make it to the NCAA championship tourney.

That was because they were upset by N.C. State in the final of the Atlantic Coast Conference tourney. The 1971 ACC tourney opens today and the Gamecocks have vowed to be the winner come Saturday night.

South Carolina, boasting a nine-game winning streak, is pitted against Maryland in one of the four opening ACC games. In the others, North Carolina meets Clemson, Duke tangles with N.C. State and Wake Forest battles Virginia.

The playoff of the triple tie in the Missouri Valley Conference for a berth in the NCAA tourney also starts tonight.

St. Louis and Louisville clash at Peoria, Ill., with the winner slated to meet Drake for the NCAA spot on Saturday. The latter game also will be played on the Bradley court at Peoria.

The NIT field was increased to 12 Wednesday with the addition of Michigan, of the Big Ten, and Oklahoma, of the Big Eight. Four berths remain to be filled.

The NCAA tourney, which determines the national championship won four straight years by UCLA, gets underway Saturday with nine first round games.

An afternoon doubleheader at South Bend, that will be nationally televised, opens the NCAA competition. The twin bill pairs Marquette against Miami of Ohio and Jacksonville against Western Kentucky.

The NCAA college division tourney opens tonight with six first round games at three regional sites.

In the Midwest Regional at Kirksville, Mo., Kentucky Wesleyan meets St. Olaf and North Dakota State plays Northeast Missouri. In the West Regional at Tacoma, Seattle Pacific plays San Francisco State and Puget Sound faces Cal Poly, SLO. In the Great Lakes Regional at Evansville, Ind., Central Michigan takes on Augustana, Ill., and Ashland of Ohio is pitted against Evansville.

The other regionals, involving the remainder of the 32 teams in the college division tourney, start Friday night.

In the only action on the courts Wednesday, Kentucky State, the defending champions, led the way into the quarter-finals of the small college NAIA tourney at Kansas City. The Thorobreds whipped Central Washington 73-59.

Also advancing to the round of eight in the NAIA were Elizabeth City, N.C. State, Grambling, Eau Claire, Eastern Michigan, Fairmont, W.Va. State, North Carolina A&T and Stephen F. Austin.

Tenpin Roundup

Herb Petersen Slams 703 Set

SAUGERTIES

The 21st seven hundred series of the 1970-71 bowling season belongs to Herb Petersen, who achieved the magic mark with 703 on lines of 257, 223 and 223 in the Bowlers Club Major. It was Herb's second of the season, the other being a whopping 758 which is No. 2 in the Big 10, behind George Glaser's leading 781.

Al North was runnerup to Petersen with 224, 244-658. THE ROADS OF AMERICA ARE STREWN WITH BROKEN PROMISES.

At this moment about 1,800,000 cars lie abandoned in the U.S. People everywhere are throwing up their hands and walking away from cars; littering the roads with monuments to frustration.

And if you think it can't happen here, just drive around with your eyes open. You'll see. It does.

As automobile dealers, we offer a simple solution to the problem: Volvo. Volvo is built to last a long time. We can't guarantee exactly how long, but we do know that 9 out of every 10 Volvos registered here in the last eleven years are still on the road.

On.

Not all over.

The Other Side of Ali

NEW YORK (UPI)—Now came the hardest part of all.

Going back home.

It wasn't merely the kidney-punishing 80-mile ride in his camper from here to his home in Cherry Hill, N.J. It was more than that. Much more. It was having to answer the questions again, the questions a man has to expect when he comes back home without accomplishing what he set out to do.

Muhammad Ali is a confirmed believer in the direct approach. He has never read Thomas Wolfe's You Can't Go Home Again, but he knew he had to not long after Joe Frazier beat him Monday night.

His first words in the dressing room were to his father.

"Daddy, we lost," he said.

His father, Cassius Marcellus Clay, normally an effusive outgoing sort of man, didn't answer his son. The elder Clay's only concern was that his boy wasn't hurt.

Two days have passed now since the fight and a lot of people have told me they're "glad" Ali got beat.

I'm not.

Frankly I didn't want to see either of the fighters take a beating. What for? Both happen to be fine, really decent individuals.

I can understand why so many people wanted to see Ali lose. He alienated them by many of the things he said. Nobody likes a loudmouth and they have him pegged as a loudmouth.

He really isn't despite the fact he seldom gives his larynx a rest.

Only a handful of people saw the real Muhammad Ali or Cassius Clay right after Monday night's defeat. His head and jaw were throbbing and his hip joints felt as if a freight train had run over it but he was thinking of others more than himself.

"You gonna take care of it?" he asked Angelo Dundee, his manager-trainer.

Angelo Dundee, who knows his fighter perfectly, knew what Ali had in mind.

"Don't worry about anything," he said. "I'll take care of it."

But for all his personal pain and everything else, Ali was worried.

"Make sure everybody gets paid," he said. "The sparrin' partners, the assistant trainer, everybody. You got all the addresses?"

Dundee assured him he had.

Then, and only then, he consented to go to the hospital so they could examine his jaw.

That's the real Cassius Clay.

The day after the fight most of the bones in his body still ached and he would have liked to rest a little longer but some newspapermen came up to his hotel room. When Dundee went in to ask if Ali was up to speaking with them he was still in bed but he said sure.

"Send 'em all in," he said. "I'm not gonna hide."

Later in the day when he was leaving the hotel, and heading home there were many people in the lobby and most of them told him how sorry they were he had lost.

"These people are killing me," he said to one of his friends. "They're tougher than Frazier was."

He meant it.

"I don't like to see people taking it that hard," he went on. "Some of 'em are cryin' because I lost. I'm not cryin' though. Life goes on. In a few weeks from now it'll all be over. They'll be talkin' about the rematch and Frazier an' me will be in trainin' again. Same thing over."

Angelo Dundee had occasion to speak with his fighter from Miami Beach Tuesday.

"What did you think?" Ali asked Dundee.

"I thought you won it," his manager answered.

"You mean that, hones' ?" Ali said.

"Look, if I thought you blew it I'd tell you."

"I know I did some things wrong like layin' on the ropes and all that but I thought I won and I'd like to fight him again."

"I don't think Joe Frazier would want it," Dundee said.

"But I read in the paper where he said he would," Ali said. "Anyway, we'll talk about that some other time. Right now I'm gonna go back and play with the kids."

That's the real Cassius Clay.

State Susnends Bundini Brown

NEW YORK (AP) — Drew "Bundini" Brown, Muhammad Ali's assistant trainer and companion, has been indefinitely suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission for excessive coaching and throwing water during Monday night's heavyweight championship bout.

The commission said Brown was continuously warned at ringside for shouting too many instructions to Ali during the fight he lost to Joe Frazier.

When Frazier dropped Ali with a crunching left hook in the opening seconds of the 15th round, Brown sprayed water from a soggy sponge on his groggy fighter and that, the commission added, "was the straw that broke the camel's back."

Frazier — Who Else?

MANILA (UPI)—The World Boxing Council (WBC) Wednesday named world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier as its "Boxer of the Month" for his decision over Muhammad Ali.

Andretta Wins Five 1st Places

KINGSTON

Jay Andretta, 10-year-old local swimming star, won five first places in a spectacular performance at the annual Plattsburgh AAU swim meet at Plattsburgh State University pool.

Andretta was first in individual medley (1:20.3); breaststroke (43.3); free style (31.1); backstroke (37.0); and the butterfly (36.3). The Plattsburgh meet drew a wide range of swimmers from all over New York State, Canada and Vermont.

Jay, a fifth grader at the George Washington School, has won many local and AAU records. Undefeated in local competition for two seasons, he has turned his attention to the more difficult AAU and state competition. His next meet will be the Junior Olympics at Albany where he is top-seeded swimmer in all his events.

WARDS RIVERSIDE PASSENGER TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees Riverside passenger car tires (to the original purchaser) against (1) defects in material and workmanship and (2) road hazards as follows:

If the tire fails due to such defects, Montgomery Ward will replace the tire FREE during the first 20% of original tread life, and for a prorated charge based on tread wear received during the remainder of the tread life. If the tire fails due to road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) during the original tread life, Montgomery Ward will replace the tire for a prorated charge based on tread wear received.

Prorated charge is based on the regular exchange price in effect at the retail store to which returned or the current catalog price in effect at the store or agency to which returned, in either case including F.E.T. Original tread life is to the top of the tread wear indicator.

For service under this guarantee return tire with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
40,000 miles	Prorated on Miles Driven
40 month	$10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF CHANGE IN GAS RATE SCHEDULE

On January 26, 1971 Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation filed with the Public Service Commission of the State of New York an amendment to gas rate schedule, P.S.C. No. 11—Gas, which became effective on February 25, 1971. Said amendment imposes a limitation on new or additional firm gas service for non-residential purposes whereby the Company will not undertake to supply firm gas service to (a) any new customer whose proposed monthly gas usage exceeds 1,500,000 cubic feet and (b) any existing customer whose proposed additional gas usage would cause his maximum monthly gas usage to exceed by more than 1,500,000 cubic feet his maximum monthly gas usage during calendar year 1970, or in the event of abnormal circumstances during 1970, his maximum monthly gas usage during the calendar years 1968 and 1969.

CENTRAL HUDSON GAS & ELECTRIC CORPORATION

Dear Abby

Beat Him to the Punch

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 39, and Edwin is 40. We've been married for 19 years, and I'm not saying our marriage has been a bed of roses, but then, whose has?

About a year ago Edwin tried to run me down with his car but I was too quick for him. Of course he denied it—said the brakes didn't hold, but he was lying.

A few months ago Edwin was on the roof fixing a leak and I was down below turning on the garden hose when he tried to drop a heavy metal tool box on my head. It missed me by a hair. I just don't know what he will pull next, Abby. I have heard rumors about him and a neighbor lady whose husband is gone for months at a time working on a ship.

If Edwin wants to be rid of me, why doesn't he say so? If I didn't have 9 kids I would leave him tomorrow.

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: If you suspect Edwin is trying to get rid of you, beat him to the punch and get rid of HIM. If you can afford a lawyer, see your local legal aid society. Better to be suspicious and alive, than the dead "victim" of an "accident." (P.S. If he asks you to go hunting, fishing, boating, or mountain climbing with him, don't go.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: During most of my childhood I had pale blond hair, but as I grew older it gradually turned to that "dishwater blond," so I started to bleach it in order to retain the same light blond color. At the time I met my husband I was a "blond," with the help of the beauty parlor. I never tried to deceive him. He knew, and had no objections.

About a month before our marriage I took a good look at myself and decided the artificial blond hair was not becoming to me—also my hair was in sad shap from all the bleaching, so I dyed it back to my natural light brown color with gold highlights. Ever since, my husband has been throwing a fit because he wants me to be a blond again.

So, Abby, I need some advice from you—and from your readers. Should I be a blond to please my husband, or should I stay the way I am to please myself?

TO DYE OR NOT TO DYE

DEAR TO: To thine own self be true. Retain your natural color and explain that nothing is forever. And tell him that when he loses HIS thatch you'll not love him less. P.S. Buy a smartly styled blond wig for those occasions when he gets blond-hungry.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I always read your column first for two reasons: First, because it is different every day, whereas the news is always the same. Politics, war, crime, etc. And second because it shows us what a motley crowd we human beings are.

For example, you recently had a letter from a woman commenting about a previous letter concerning sickness in old age. She believed that sickness in old age is punishment for sins committed in younger days. That's like believing, as they did in the early Christian era, that people with mental illness were possessed of the devil.

Then today you told somebody that people who leave their TV sets on when friends called are justified if the callers dropped in unexpected.

If you are right, what has happened to the old idea of friendliness? I can't think of a TV program that is more important than having an old friend drop in to pay me a visit. It's the folks who are called upon who are honored. We are always pleased when unexpected company drops in.

Yes, we human beings are a motley crowd.

ONE OF THEM

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

TV RULE: (Q.) My mother will let me watch only one hour of television on weekdays. Is that fair? I'm 13.—Rationed in Elmira, N. Y.

(A.) Weekday television restrictions are healthy. Your mother's rule makes sense to me.

By the time you study, make or take phone calls, dine, bathe, visit with your parents, and watch TV for an hour, it's about bedtime.

When there's a special educational TV program that you should see, your mother should make an exception to the one-hour rule.

JEALOUSLY: (Q.) My father is jealous of my mother. He doesn't like for my brother or me to bring our boy friends around.

They like to talk to her and have fun with her. But when they do my father gets very angry.

I don't understand why. She is old. She is 43 and already is a grandmother.—16-Year-Old Daughter in Texas.

(A.) Unless she lets herself be, a woman of 43 is NOT old. Most women of 43 are very vital, just as much so but in a different way from 16-year-old girls. From your description, your mother sounds like this kind of woman.

But your father should not be jealous of her. He may have emotional problems you do not know about. Talk to him when he seems to be in the mood to talk. Don't pry, but let him know you are ready to listen to him. Talking to you, if he will do so, may help him.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2102, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered.)

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

Friday, March 12

GENERAL TENDENCIES — During the day there is a strong and unusual need to be most cooperative with others and not yield to an urge to make problems out of some small, unimportant differences of opinion. The evening then is good for joining with others in the various activities that bring joy and happiness to you and to them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Back up associates instead of criticizing them. This brings right results, more profits, and makes the evening ideal, instead of boring. Take care in the business world during the day. Show mate devotion in p.m.

TAURUS (Aug. 20 to May 20) Although conditions are not particularly good at work, don't get upset but improve them yourself. Await the evening for talks with co-workers, then you come to a good understanding.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you keep rooted to your job you get much done instead of going off on some foolish tangent. Apply yourself to creative approaches and much good comes of this. Evening can be very happy with mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Show kin that you do understand them instead of fussing and fuming, then the evening can be ideal at home. Do something to add to present income. Use more of your God-given faculties.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't lose your temper with others or you jeoparidze the fine position you find yourself in at the present time. Don't take any chances with money, either. Prove you have a good head on your shoulders.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show that you are practical and get your bills paid during a.m. and then work on new ideas for advancement. Get budget updated and do something about improving any property you may own. Do it now and save money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Many annoying little situations may come up during the day, but take them in your stride then all is OK in p.m. Do something to improve both appearance and health. You then find life far more interesting and challenging.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You need to give more precise attention to what you are doing if you want those conditions around you to improve. Take the time to assist one who is having trouble. Make the evening ideal from the romantic standpoint.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your personal desires and rid yourself of whatever keeps you from progressing. The social scene could be disappointing during day, but tonight all is fine. Dress well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't give in to that temptation to give up your work, or do some other radical thing you might later regret. Some letter you receive could be upsetting, but works to your benefit later in the day. Curb your temper.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listening to the ideas of others who have had more exuerience than you is wise right now. Some communication bothers you during day. Do something constructive about it later.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) There are some annoying duties that need to be handled regardless, so get busy early. The evening is then free for romantic pleasure. Please one who advises you by carrying through with suggested ideas.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who wants many playmates around while very young and for this reason could choose many a wrong one, so be sure to select friends wisely, as parents. Then your progeny will find it easy to communicate with others in a most pleasant and successful way, making the life smoother and more successful than would otherwise have happened. Artistic work is fine here, or whatever requires precision, neatness.

Z and Y the old auction players have adopted modern bidding methods with great enthusiasm although not always with the most approved results.

Thus Z's two-club call was their only forcing open. West jammed them up with his four no-trump call which was the unusual no-trump to show both minor suits, but Y was not going to be shut out. He bid five spades and Z bid six hearts.

Z looked over dummy carefully. "I think I played one just like this in a Sidney Lenz article back around 1925. It is just as well that I am declarer."

He took his ace and diamonds and played the ace of hearts. When West showed out Z remarked, "Yes, indeed. Everything begins to fall in place."

He promptly cashed dummy's ace, king and queen of spades in order to discard his losing diamonds. Then he ruffed a fourth spade to reduce his trump holding to the same number as East.

Next came the ace and king of clubs followed by a ruff of his last club in dummy. Then he led another spade. East ruffed with the seven. Z overruffed and led his six of hearts. East won with the eight but had to lead a heart to give Z the last two tricks.

"Suppose I had been able to overruffed the third club," said East. "You would have been set!"

"Yes," said Z, "but that's not the way Sidney made up the hand."

Benny Character Still Funny

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Benny, with an NBC special Wednesday night, was still generating laughter with jokes about his age and his skill on the violin—apparently there is no end to the variations that can be rung on these themes.

After almost 40 years on radio and television, the vain, miserly character that Benny has evolved is still funny. And his special was as bright and amusing as the comedian himself.

The idea for Benny's second special of the season was adapted from the title of a best selling book—"Everything You've Always Wanted to Know About Jack Benny—But Were Afraid to Ask." This was just an excuse to get some of associates on stage and have some flashbacks to his fanciful past.

Phil Harris wrangled with Jack about the lyrics of a nonsense song.

George Burns told some outrageous lies about "the real Jack Benny" and how they met. John Wayne turned up, first as a chorus boy, then as a prop boy.

The hour was neatly pulled together by Benny's outraged reactions.

"Robert Young and the Family" earlier on CBS was a mild comedy special about subjects used so often in one form or another they have lost their freshness.

There were, among others, sketches about pushy fathers of Little League players, about an efficient housewife who had almost computerized her family and two that involved the generation gap.

In Robert Young, the program had the perfect TV father-figure, an image that started with "Father Knows Best," and has come into full flower with wise, kind Dr. Marcus Welby. He didn't really have much to do except smile a lot, introduce the sketches and give some statistics about families. He seemed rather uncomfortable.

Jack Warden was effective, while Julie Sommars, Lee Grant and William Windom did the best they could with uninspired material.

"The Cat in the Hat," third in the CBS series of Dr. Seuss cartoon programs, was full of the author's engaging humor and nonsense. This time the trouble-maker was a top-hatted feline, a brash creature on the hunt for his "moss-colored, three-handled family gradunza"—Dr. Seuss never explains his references.

Dr. Seuss' imaginative stories defy outline but they are amusing for young and old. So were the lyrics of the songs that punctuated the half hour.

WHY WE SAY

NONSENSE: This word got its name from an Arabian alchemist named Giber who was accused in the 11th century of dealing with the devil. In order to avoid prosecution he wrote his notes in nonsense words (Gibberish) so they could not be used against him.

Easy Win for 18-Year-Olds

WASHINGTON (AP) — With backing from leaders of both parties, a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18 in all elections has breezed through the Senate in a race changing be made only by elections.

Proponents say the amendment is needed to prevent the expense and confusion of dual-age election systems. Currently, all 18-year-olds may vote in federal elections, but persons under 21 cannot vote in state and local elections except in nine states.

Next test for the amendment is the House where it is expected to gain approval next week, or shortly thereafter. Senate approval came on a 94-0 vote Wednesday.

To become law, the amendment will have to be ratified by 38 of the 50 state legislatures.

Adoption of the amendment would mean about 11 million young people between the ages of 18 and 21 could register as voters in all elections.

Congress voted last year to lower the voting age to 18 in all elections, but the Supreme Court ruled the law was unconstitutional except for federal elections. The court held such a changing be made only by amending the Constitution.

Only Alaska, Georgia and Kentucky have lowered the voting age for all elections to 18. In six other states the voting age has been cut to 19 or 20.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., floor manager for the proposed amendment, said speedy action by the House is important because of next year's elections.

He said about 25 state legislatures meeting now will be out of session by the end of April and not all of them will meet next year.

In other action Wednesday, the Senate, by a 68-23 vote, tabled and thus killed another proposed constitutional amendment to give the District of Columbia full voting reprsentation in Congress.

Buckley Explains His Change of Heart

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It took a change of heart, but Sen. James L. Buckley was recorded with the rest of the Senate Wednesday in its 94-0 approval of a proposed constitutional amendment to lower the voting age to 18 in all elections.

Buckley held a news conference only hours before the vote and told newsmen he would vote against the amendment. Later, he had second thoughts. An aide telephoned newsmen to say the freshman Conservative had changed his mind and would vote for the proposal.

The aide said Buckley changed his mind after being briefed by his staff.

"His concern initially was that it would be dictating to the state," the aide said. "On reflection, it is not ... the states still have to ratify the amendment."

At the news conference Buckley termed President Nixon's decision to invade Cambodia last year "a howling success" and added he similarly supported the Vietnamese incursion into Laos.

"The termination of supply routes there," he said, "will make it that much easier to get our forces out."

Meanwhile, he is studying "an alternative" to President Nixon's revenue sharing proposal, a measure for which he has previously shown cautious support.

The Buckley plan would grant the states a $5 billion tax credit, allowing them to spend the money any way they prefer. The federal government would later recoup the revenue in federal taxes but each state lgislature would have the prerogative of whether to participate.

Buckley opposed one frequently mentioned alternative to the administration's revenue sharing proposal, a federal takeover of all welfare costs, which he said would "dump the whole program in the federal government's lap."

"We've got to recognize that we're all federal taxpayers," he said.

Social Security Benefits . . . Increase Appears Certain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quick enactment of a 10-per-cent increase in Social Security benfits for 26 million Americans appears certain under a short-cut maneuver worked out by Democratic congressional leaders.

Under the strategy, the increase in benefits and in wage deductions to pay for them would be enacted months ahead of the schedule likely for the Nixon administration's own plan.

The maneuver calls for adding the Social Security provision as a Senate amendment to a House-passed bill raising the national debt limit by $35 billion.

The Senate will open consideration of the debt measure Friday, although final action may not come until Monday.

Democratic leaders said the amendment will be adopted without difficulty, noting the Senate passed 81 to 0 last December a bill providing a 10-per cent Social Security hike; it died because the House refused to go to conference on it.

However, it is understood Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee has now agreed to go along with an increase added to the debt-limit bill.

But Ways and Means has run into trouble with the complex welfare changes, and final action by the House is considered weeks away.

Then, Senate leaders estimate, another three to four months would be required for House hearings, drafting, debate and passage.

The strategy of splitting Social Security from the welfare bill will relieve much of the public pressure for fast action on the combined measure and leave time for more consideration of welfare reform.

Congress has agreed to make the Social Security increases retroactive to last Jan. 1.

President Nixon has asked for a 6-per-cent Social Security increase, but congressional leaders are confident he will sign a 10-per-cent boost if included in the debt-limit bill. The government needs the extra borrowing power soon to continue meeting its obligations.

Gen. Cole Issued Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP — Investigating senators have set a Friday deadline for a former general to explain financial arrangements involving his alleged protection and promotion of corrupt business schemes on Army bases in Vietnam.

Former Brig. Gen. Earl Franklin Cole left the hearing room of the Senate's investigations subcommittee Wednesday with a senator's warning of possible perjury still ringing in his ears.

Committee members said they were unconvinced by Cole's complete denial of any wrongdoing and his charge he had been destroyed by "untrue, unproven and slanderous" accusations by disgruntled former associates.

Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., ordered Cole's lawyers to produce his complete financial statement before the Friday session begins and scolded them for not preparing it sooner as ordered.

He pointedly failed to act on a petition by the Cole attorneys that their client be released from further obligation to testify.

"In my judgment there is a very good chance you have committed perjury before this committee," Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., told Cole after 3½ hours of testimony. "In my judgment you have disgraced the uniform you have worn so long."

Percy said Cole had failed to disprove even once the sworn testimony of two-dozen and more witnesses, most of them Army career officers and investigators, who accused him of 43 instances of using "favors, pressure and influence" to boost the fortunes of get-rich promoters dealing with the clubs and PX systems in Vietnam.

"And you failed to offer any explanation of why so many would come before this subcommittee simply to defame your character," Percy said.

Much of the previous testimony over three weeks of hearings concerned Cole's relationship with entrepeneur William J. Crum, and two of his principal firms—Sarl Electronics, a slot machine distributor, and Price & Co., dealer in beer, whiskey and other goods.
